Kissinger-Thieu Talks End; No Hints On Subject Given

SAIGON (AP) — Henry A. Kissinger ended two days of talks with President Nguyen Van Thieu today and flew to Japan, leaving no hints for the public of what they said to each other.

Brief statements issued by Thieu's office said the nearly six hours of talks had dealt with the "general situation" in Vietnam and the peace negotiations in Paris.

If there were any significant disagreements between Kissinger and the South Vietnamese, they were not revealed by the statements, even though they were issued separately. But the total time consumed by the speculation that new peace proposals had been carefully explored during the two days of meetings.

The U.S. Embassy statement said the talks "provided an opportunity for a general review of all aspects of the situation in South Vietnam as well as of the talks which have taken place in Paris with representatives of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam."

The South Vietnamese communiqué said they had "reviewed the general situation of the Republic of Vietnam and questions related to the Paris peace talks."

Kissinger was smiling and appeared relaxed as usual when he was seen off at Tan Son Nhut Air Base by U.S. Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker and Nguyen Phu Duc, Thieu's chief adviser on national security.

Kissinger was to stop overnight in Tokyo for a meeting with Japan's new prime minister, Kakuei Tanaka, then fly home to report to President Nixon at Camp David.

Newsman were not allowed near the Saigon conferences and not even the usual photographs of the participants were permitted. Kissinger and Thieu met for three hours and 45 minutes today and for two hours and 15 minutes Thursday.

Quarterly Report Shows Economy On Big Upswing

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government has issued a prosperous report for the April-June quarter: the economy grew more than expected, corporate profits increased strongly, and inflation was lower than anticipated.

The Commerce Department said Thursday the Gross National Product grew at a 9.4 percent rate in the second quarter, better than the 8.9 percent estimate of a month ago.

The GNP revision made the economic growth during the quarter the highest since the fourth quarter of 1965, when the economy also advanced by 9.4 percent.

The GNP is the total market value of the nation's goods and services and the broadest measure of the economy.

The Nixon administration says it will be hard to sustain the second-quarter growth. The department said the GNP from April through June rose $30.3 billion to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $139.1 trillion.

Corporate pretax profits increased at an annual rate of $4.9 billion, the department said. The increase brings the profits figure to a seasonally adjusted annual rate of $93.1 billion in the second quarter.

Only two weeks ago, Commerce officials told industry sources privately that second-quarter corporate profits increased by $8 billion or more, a forecast mainly based on glittering profit reports by big corporations. But the department revised its estimate when more data came in.

The department said the inflation rate was 1.8 percent, lower than the earlier estimate of 2.1 percent. It was the lowest rate registered since the last three months of 1971, when the wage-price freeze played a major role.

During the first three months of 1972, the economy grew at a 6.5 percent rate while inflation—caused by a price bulge after the freeze—rose by 5.1 percent.

PICKAWAY County Sheriff's Deputy Jim Deal had an uneventful shift Friday morning for the department. It's what happened before and after he was on duty that is interesting.

Deal, while driving to work, spotted a car with no tail lights or brakelights (see story on page 2) and kindly offered to escort that car's driver and occupant to a service station for repairs.

During the less-than-a-mile journey, Deal learned that the men were using a stolen license tag, and after their arrest, discovered that they had a loaded gun concealed in the car.

Not enough? Sheriff Dwight Radcliff excused Deal at 6 a.m. Friday morning to report for his selective service physical at Fort Hayes, Columbus. After he left for the bus trip, fellow Deputy Bob Hoover found that Deal had left the motor running on his cruiser.

CIRCLEVILLE High School guidance counselor Dick Fisher reports that response of new students to the registration announcement has been slow this year, while Junior High School Principal J. L. Chilcote feared a flood of unnecessary registrants.

Only students new to the city schools need register, and an article in Thursday's edition of The Herald failed to make this clear.

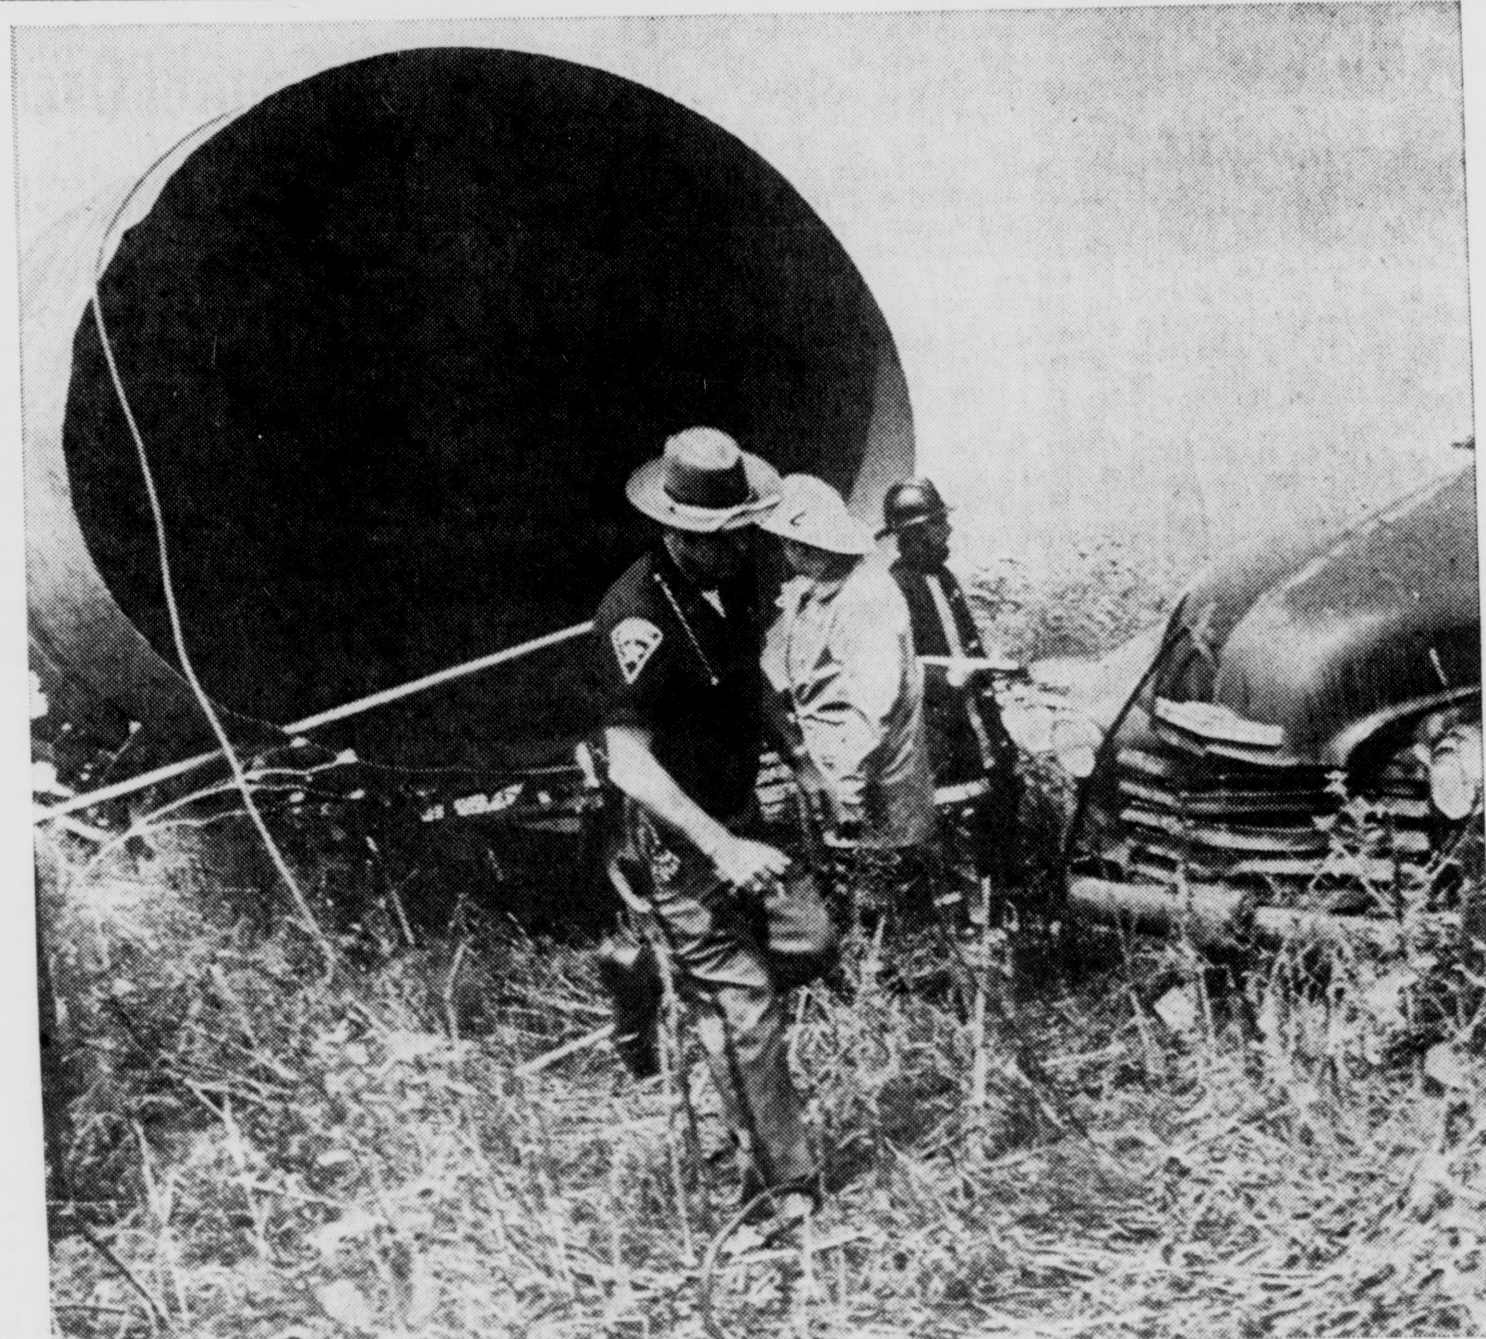

Chilcote was afraid that parents would think that all students should register.

Fisher reported new student registration at the high school is much less than anticipated so far. New high school students should register at the high school on Clark Drive.

New seventh, eighth and ninth grades should register at Chilcote's office in the junior high building at the corner of South Court and Corwin Streets. Elementary students may register in

Tornadoes, Rain And Hail Pound Wide Areas Of Ohio

EXPLOSION — Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Bob Hoover surveys the site of a Thursday afternoon gasoline tank explosion that injured three Piketon men. Firemen, pictured in background with the tank, were called to extinguish a truck fire that started when the tank's end demolished it. The end was found 100 feet away in a wooded area.

Gas Tank Explosion Injures Trio

Drice Montgomery, 65, his son, Dale and helper James Bryant, 29, all of Piketon, suffered only minor injuries when an 8000 gallon gasoline storage tank the elder Montgomery was cutting open with a torch exploded.

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputies were called 2:40 p.m. Thursday to the Route 23 and Red Bridge-East Ringgold gasoline station that sold the tanks to the trio.

Montgomery was apparently cutting the steel tanks 10-feet, 6-inches in diameter, when they exploded, knocking him 30 feet through the air.

Bryant, standing nearby, was sent flying 20 feet.

Both were treated and released from Berger Hospital's emergency room suffering shrapnel-type wounds from the flying metal.

Dale Montgomery was cut when he was thrown to the ground.

Drice Montgomery told Sheriff's Deputy Bob Hoover that the end of the tank was blown off and flew into the rear end of their pickup truck.

The truck was demolished and Harrison Twp. fire units were called to put out the resultant fire.

Deputies could not find the tank's end, as the explosion turned the tank in another direction. It was found, after a search, in an adjacent wooded area, where it had ripped down several trees, over 100 feet from the tank.

World War II Foes Meet At Naval Air Station Fete

OAK HARBOR, Wash. (AP) — The Japanese admiral and the American admiral are shaking hands, instead of fists, today over lunch 30 years later. The two wartime enemies buried the hatchet and the Samurai sword, figuratively, at a reunion of the old Pat Wing Four Airfares which will go on until Sunday at Oak Harbor Naval Air Station.

Vice Admiral Hiroichi Samejima came at the invitation of retired U.S. Adm. James Russell. The party also includes 165

American squadron veteran. On June 3, 1942, Lt. Samejima led a Japanese bomber squadron against Dutch Harbor in Alaska's Aleutian Islands. Russell was the commanding officer of the VP42 squadron of the Patrol Wing Four at Dutch Harbor.

Now, 30 years later, Samejima is the "Favorite Former Enemy" guest of Russell at the American reunion.

Russell explained that he met Samejima about 1955 through a gift of some books from a Japanese acquaintance.

"The note in the books said the bearer was Commander Samejima, who led the bombers that hit Dutch Harbor," Russell recalls. "And I looked up, and there the fellow was standing in front of me."

They went to lunch several days later, Russell said, and soon their wives had met and their families had become friends.

Are there any feelings of bitterness left over from World War II?

"Well, I got plenty mad when I saw the corpse of one of my crewmen lying in the water, but no, there's no bitterness," Russell says, adding that almost all the reuniting squadron members approved of inviting Samejima.

Intangible Tax Revenue Listed

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Ohio's 8 counties received $67.5 million in intangible tax revenues from financial institutions and securities dealers, State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson said today.

Counties received the money on the basis of investments of financial institutions and securities dealers within their jurisdiction.

Cuyahoga County got the most — $16.3 million. Hamilton was second with $7.3 million and Franklin third with $5.4 million.

Auto Price Hikes Cut

DETROIT (AP) — General Motors Corp. has become the first automaker to bow to White House pressure and decrease a price-hike request for 1973 models now pending before the Price Commission.

GM announced Thursday it would roll back its original request for an increase by $31, from an average of $90 a car to an average of $59 per car.

Earlier, both Chrysler Corp. and American Motors Corp. said they would not decrease their requests for an added $110 and $150 respectively.

Ford Motor Co. said Thursday it had asked for more time to study a request by Director Donald Rumsfeld of the Cost of Living Council that automakers withdraw their requests for price hikes on 1973 models.

Rumsfeld, who had requested a response by 5 p.m. Thursday, granted the delay, Ford said. The company has an original price hike request of $92 before the Price Commission.

Tax Repeal Supporters Confident

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Income tax petitions could fall short of the required number of signatures after invalid names are weeded out, but backers of the movement aren't concerned about making up the difference.

"Any making up we would be forced to do under existing rules would have to be minor," said Rep. Robert Netzley, R-7, Laura, leader of the repeal movement. "It couldn't involve too many names."

Local election boards currently are in the process of checking the 366,000 signatures on petitions submitted by repeal backers.

While small county reports show the signatures running only 9.6 per cent invalid, Secretary of State Ted Brown said reports from larger counties indicate the signature count could fall short of the necessary 318,414 names.

If this should happen, Ohio law requires that promoters be given an additional 10 days to file supplemental petitions to make up for the signatures invalidated.

Brown said many of the petitions "may be ruled out because one signer among 25 lived in a different county than the one named in the petition."

He noted an attorney general's opinion two years ago ruled that one such signature invalidated the entire petition. In come tax repeal backers are challenging that ruling in a Cincinnati court.

Division Of Wildlife Takes Applications

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Division of Wildlife says it will accept applications until Sept. 8 for $10 controlled waterfowl hunting season permits. A drawing will be held Sept. 13 to determine recipients of permits.

The permits will allow holders and one guest each to hunt for one day at Magee Marsh, Mercer, Killdeer Plains or Mosquito Creek Wildlife areas.

Damage High Near Delphi, Mansfield

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Severe thundershowers, some of them trailing funnel clouds, churned across Ohio Thursday afternoon and evening, dumping heavy rain and hail and knocking down power lines and tree limbs.

Twisters touched down briefly in Huron and Richland counties, damaging several buildings.

Tornado warnings also were issued by the National Weather Service for Ashland, Delaware, Franklin and Licking counties. There were no reports of any touching ground in those areas, although a number of funnel clouds were sighted, including four north of Columbus.

The storm area stretched from Williams County in the northwest to Meigs County in the southeast.

Up to three inches of rain fell in the Mansfield and Columbus areas. Pea size hail was reported at Bryan and quarter-inch hail fell near Findlay.

A tornado damaged four houses and wrecked four barns near Delphi in southern Huron County. A new home under construction was destroyed and three other houses received roof damage. There were no injuries.

Another twister touched down five miles north of Mansfield, ripping the roofs off some barns and popping some windows.

Reports of power outages caused by downed utility lines were scattered through the storm area. Much of Gallipolis was reported without electricity Thursday night.

A mobile home was blown over at the Gallia County fairgrounds and a tree fell on a travel trailer, but no one was hurt.

In Cheshire, Donald Jackson of Sciotoville was injured when lightning struck equipment he was operating. He was taken to Holzer Medical Center in Gallipolis.

Blame Fire, Tree Damage On Area Storm

Severe thundershowers Thursday night and Friday morning caused at least one county fire, according to the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department, that necessitated the evacuation of the apartment building that was burning.

The Hinkle Apartments, 99 Long St., Ashville, sustained approximately $1,500 interior damage when lightning struck adjacent power lines and ignited a fire in the building's main power box.

The Harrison Twp. Fire Department, almost across the street from the apartments ordered evacuation of 10 to 15 families living in the building.

The fire department fought the interior fire for about an hour and a half before ordering the building clear.

THEY were called back at 1:15 a.m. Friday when a resident smelled smoke in the dwelling, but discovered that the fire was out.

Other damage by the storm in the county occurred 1:45 a.m. Friday when lightning shattered a tree on the Circleville-Tarleton Road blocking the roadway.

Sheriff's Deputies report that the limb was removed by the County Highway Department.

Other tree limb damage was reported at Route 188 and Dunkle Road and Route 188 and the Bolender-Pontious Road.

The local weather service reports that 1.1 inches of rain drenched the city.

Most of the storm damage was centered in the northern sector of the county, however. An Ashville weather observer noted that rain dumped nearly 3 inches of rain at his farm.

Groups Fight For Control Of GOP In '76

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Preliminaries for next week's Republican convention are turning into a forum for attacks on Democratic presidential nominee George McGovern and mark the opening stages in the battle for control of the GOP in 1976.

A floor fight over the shape of the 1976 convention was assured Thursday when the Republican National Committee approved a delegate allotment plan supported by GOP leaders and party conservatives that favors the smaller, more solid Republican states.

Party moderates, claiming states likely to back Vice President Spiro T. Agnew for the 1967 Republican presidential nomination favor the plan, hope to reverse the action at next week's convention. Even if they fail, the plan is sure to be challenged in the federal courts.

The final public session of the Platform Committee produced a sharp attack by William Ruckelshaus, the Nixon administration's environmental chief, on McGovern's antipollution proposals.

Other Republicans fired a steady barrage of criticism at the Democratic nominee for sending former White House press secretary Pierre Salinger to determine whether the North Vietnamese still planned to hold all U.S. prisoners until the Vietnam war ends.

"His meddling is reckless," declared Sen. Gordon Allott of Colorado. "Shocking and an absolute outrage," said Michigan's Sen. Robert P. Griffin.

Their criticism and a White House statement that the Salinger mission could jeopardize the peace talks were countered quickly by the campaigning McGovern.

The major unfinished business of convention preliminaries was drafting a platform for Republicans to run on this fall.

First installments due out today were to deal with military and foreign policy and were expected to praise Nixon's winding-down of the Vietnam war and to pledge a cease fire in Indochina once all U.S. prisoners are freed.

Rep. Margaret Heckler of Massachusetts, a member of a subcommittee working on a women's rights plank, said, "there wasn't even much discussion" of a proposal to urging repeal of laws against abortion.

The abortion issue still could be raised on the floor next

Sisters Aid Deputies In Apprehension

Barbara and Linda Carter, 20 and 15-year-old daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Carter, have been credited with assisting the Pickaway County Sheriff's Department arrest of two out-of-county men for petit larceny and auto theft.

Barbara Carter called the Sheriff's Department 1:19 p.m. Thursday to report that two men had walked back their farm lane, off Route 104, and taken five gallons of gasoline from a fuel pump.

Deputy Bob Hoover was dispatched to the scene, and while enroute, the girls said the men had put the gasoline in the car and walked back to the garage, where they took an oil can.

Linda Carter locked the doors to the house, while Barbara kept dispatcher John Bost and Hoover informed of the men's actions.

HOOPER apprehended the pair as they were walking near the car.

Thinking he did not know their actions, they told the deputy that they were walking to Chillicothe and had stopped for a drink of water.

Hoover arrested them at the scene, after again hearing the Carter girls' stories, and discovered, through routine investigation that the car they were driving had been stolen in Chillicothe 1:06 a.m. Thursday from Kenneth Hawk.

One man, Ronald Ashcraft, 18, Columbus, will be charged with petit larceny today in Municipal Court and then transferred to Ross County court for the auto larceny charge. He was on parole from the Ohio Youth Commission, where he had been committed on an arson charge.

The other man, a 17-year-old Chillicothe juvenile, will be sent to Ross County for both charges.

He was also on parole from the Ohio Youth Commission where he had been placed for two counts of breaking and entering and an auto larceny charge.

Their criticism and a White House statement that the Salinger mission could jeopardize the peace talks were countered quickly by the campaigning McGovern.

The major unfinished business of convention preliminaries was drafting a platform for Republicans to run on this fall.

First installments due out today were to deal with military and foreign policy and were ex-

Rep. Margaret Heckler of Massachusetts, a member of a subcommittee working on a women's rights plank, said, "there wasn't even much discussion" of a proposal to urging repeal of laws against abortion.

Deputy Helps Car Driver, Discovers Loaded Revolver

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Jim Deal spotted a northbound car on Route 23 with no tail lights or brake lights 10:49 p.m. Thursday and informed driver of the car, Chester Gross, Marianna, W. Va., of his auto's condition.

Deputy Deal offered to follow Gross, and his companion, Ronald Clark, 23, Emmet, W. Va., to a service station to fix the faulty lights, when Sheriff's Dispatcher Russ Adams told him, by car radio, that the license tag number he had reported was stolen.

Deal followed the men to the service station, while calling for reinforcements, and kept them under watch until Sheriff Dwight Radcliff, Deputies Don Thompson, Earl Kuhn, Frank Wood, and auxiliary Ray Ratliff could assist him with the arrests.

West Virginia Police confirmed that the tags were stolen last week. The car belonged to Gross.

While searching the car, Deal found a loaded .22 caliber pistol under the seat and numerous miscellaneous merchandise and pills in the trunk.

The men were charged with using stolen tags and carrying a concealed weapon by the department pending a trace of the items found in the car.

Sheriff's Department Nabs Vandals

Pickaway County Deputy Sheriff Bob Hoover arrested Andrea Carter Simms and three juveniles about a half an hour after Bernard Trecker, Route 5, and Cornell E. Copeland, Route 5, reported nearly $500 damage had been committed to their properties.

Simms appeared in Circleville Municipal Court Wednesday morning and was fined $50 and costs for defacing a traffic control device.

Deputy Hoover said Trecker called him 9:06 a.m. last Friday to view the damage committed by vandals.

Hoover found that they had taken a paint brush and white paint and walked around Trecker's black wrought iron outside fence.

THEY used the brush to print obscenities on Route 188 and a stop sign near Trecker's house, filled his swimming pool with empty beer cans and littered his yard with waste paper.

The deputy took the criminal report and was driving to Ringgold when Cornell Copeland stopped him to point out waste paper that was scattered in his yard, apparently by the same vandals.

Again Hoover took a report and continued to Ringgold where he questioned one of the juveniles. A truck, driven by Simms, pulled in to pick up the boy when Hoover noticed paint that matched that on Trecker's fence on the boy's shirt and arm.

After questioning the boys admitted the vandalism.

The deputy drove the four youths to Trecker's home where they again admitted the vandalism.

Trecker did not file charges as the youths cleaned up the mess they had committed.

HOOPER, however, filed charges for the obscenities painted on the stop sign.

The other youths are expected to answer charges next month in juvenile court.

Home Economics Teachers Attend Annual Confab

Mrs. Betty Rickey, Mrs. Diane Smith and Miss Linda Steck, from the Circleville high and junior high schools, were among more than 1,200 home economics teachers and supervisors attending the 55th Annual Vocational Home Economics Conference this week.

The three-day event was held Monday through Wednesday at the Sheraton Motor Hotel in Columbus. It centered around the theme, "Individualizing for Tomorrow."

Outstanding national and state leaders in education addressed the conference, including State Superintendent of Public Instruction, Dr. Martin W. Essex and Dr. Byrl R. Shoemaker, Director of the Division of Vocational Education.

Dr. Donald Stewart, of Westminster, Calif., gave the keynote address, "A Learning Systems Approach to Instruction and the Changing Role of the Supervisor."

Mrs. Rickey, Mrs. Smith and Miss Steck note that the vocational home economics programs at the city schools is undergoing change. A greater effort will be made to individualize instruction, they noted, and new textbooks have been adopted for use this year.

South Central Re-Elects Trustees

Three incumbent members of the Board of Trustees of South Central Power Company were re-elected to their posts at the 36th Annual Meeting of the locally-owned power company held Thursday at the Fairfield County Fairgrounds in Lancaster.

Re-elected were: H. Newell Stevenson of Route 3, Circleville, Harold Kline, Greenfield; and Carl Griggs, Logan.

Stevenson has been a member of the Board of Trustees since 1939; Kline, since 1946, and Griggs, since 1953.

The newly elected Board of Directors elected the following officers of the company:

John W. Eakin of Canal Winchester, president; Charles Wyckoff of Piketon, vice president; Carl Griggs of Logan, assistant vice president; Charles Blackburn of New Vienna, treasurer; O. Edmond Leckrone of Mt. Perry, assistant treasurer.

Elected Secretary of the company, to replace retiring C. Dale Winegardner, was Harold L. Kline.

Glenn Hastings of Hillsboro, was elected assistant secretary, the post formerly held by Kline.

IT WAS simply "one of those days" for probation officer-common pleas court bailiff Frank Hudson.

Finding himself without a sportcoat to complete his attire, Hudson scoured the courthouse this morning and lifted a colorful coat from the back of juvenile probation officer Millard Derr.

Once in court, Hudson received an unusual request from attorney Richard Penn to care for an infant, the child of one of the parties in a case seeking settlement today.

The court employee handled the entire incident with aplomb and could be seen in a slightly oversized coat proudly walking the fascinated baby around the courtroom.

MRS. Sheila Lewis and her Mill St. neighbors are sponsoring a community yard sale and carnival today and tomorrow in the parking lot behind the Calvary United Methodist Church to raise funds to send the city's underprivileged children on YMCA recreational trips.

There will be a little bit of everything at the carnival, which starts 9 a.m. today and Saturday, including pony rides and baked goods sale.

"We are aware of this situation and have been cooperating with the NHTSA in its investigation. The conditions under which certain size stones from gravel roads may lodge in the steering coupling are so unusual and the occurrences so rare that we do not believe this constitutes a hazard to our customers."

"We have sent bulletins to all dealers advising them of the availability of a simple shield that can be installed to prevent the possibility of stones becoming lodged in the steering-shaft coupling of full-sized 1971 and 1972 vehicles. For those owners who may operate their vehicles under such unusual conditions GM dealers will install this shield without charge to the owners of these 1971-72 model cars regardless of age or mileage."

Ralph Nader's Center for Auto Safety said GM had been aware of the problem at least since March, and in May sent dealers instructions about the gravel shield which costs about 50 cents and takes 10 minutes to install.

The roadblock consisted of one cruiser from each of the suburban Springdale and Enderdale Police Departments. The car the youth was driving belonged to the Ohio State Patrol post in Dayton.

The teen-ager, said to be from Baxter, Tenn., was taken to Bethesda North Hospital. No condition report was available.

Authorities said that the youth was clocked at speeds over 130 miles in the pursuit that began in Montgomery County after he was involved in a minor collision with another vehicle.

The state patrol responded to the wreck and that is when the youth jumped into the cruiser, police said.

State Air Pollution Board Ponders Fees For Permits

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Air Pollution Control Board has taken under advisement conflicting testimony on proposed fees for permits it will issue under Ohio's air pollution control program.

Manufacturers' spokesmen said Thursday they are to high, conservation groups said they were to low, and state officials proposed a list revised upwards from amounts they announced earlier.

The board will meet again Aug. 31 to discuss this latest testimony and adopt the fee schedule, John Brown, hearing examiner for the board, said.

Permits will be issued for operational stages in three categories. They are fuel-burning equipment such as gas and oil-fired boilers, incinerator burning, and processing through the use of solid fuels.

David Rome, chief of authorization and certification of the Health Department's air pollution unit, offered a list of "modifications" from the fees proposed originally. He said they resulted from studies into actual costs of issuing, revoking, modifying, and denying permits and variances. The board is authorized by statute to set fees for these costs, Rome said.

He proposed incinerator fees of $50-$130 for operating facilities that are in compliance with standards, $75 to $375 for variances (temporary permits granted while compliance is under way), and installation fees of $60-$125. Fees could apply for one, two or three years in each category — subject to a later board determination, Rome said.

For "incinerators, fees proposed by Rome ranged from $50-$130 for operation, $75-$375 for variance and $65-$325 for installation. Processing fees were listed at $50-$130 for operation, $75-$375 for variance and $65-$325 for installation.

Starting next month, a computer will be running Ohio's Medicaid program, paying claims faster and spotting abuses that now go unnoticed.

The Ohio Department of Welfare is setting up a pilot project for the U.S. Department of Health, Education and Welfare designed to find a better way to keep track of the nation's expanding Medicaid rolls.

If the new computer system works, other states will come to Ohio to study it and then teach their computers the same time and money-saving tricks.

Lawrence Curtis, who heads the Ohio department's Management Information Systems Division, says the new computers will cut payment delays to health service providers from the current three to six months down to between 15 and 30 days.

They'll also permit the department to tell an inquiring pharmacist or doctor exactly how much the state owes him at the touch of a computer terminal keyboard. That kind of information takes weeks to find under the present setup.

Several kinds of Medicaid fraud and other abuses will be much easier to detect under the new system, Curtis added.

For instance, the computer will be told how long a given illness usually keeps a patient in the hospital. If the patient stays longer, the computer will reject the claim until the department can find out whether the extra time was justified.

Or if the department suspects a patient may have gone to a number of doctors for the same prescription it can ask the computer for his claims record and find out right away.

Also built into the new system will be the ability to check back with recipients to insure that health care providers are actually rendering the services for which they charge the state and that the services are adequate.

Deputy Helps Car Driver, Discovers Loaded Revolver

Pickaway County Sheriff's Deputy Jim Deal spotted a northbound car on Route 23 with no tail lights or brake lights 10:49 p.m. Thursday and informed driver of the car, Chester Gross, Marianna, W. Va., of his auto's condition.

Deputy Deal offered to follow Gross, and his companion, Ronald Clark, 23, Emmet, W. Va., to a service station to fix the faulty lights, when Sheriff's Dispatcher Russ Adams told him, by car radio, that the license tag number he had reported was stolen.

Deal followed the men to the service station, while calling for reinforcements, and kept them under watch until Sheriff Dwight Radcliff, Deputies Don Thompson, Earl Kuhn, Frank Wood, and auxiliary Ray Radliff could assist him with the arrests.

West Virginia Police confirmed that the tags were stolen last week. The car belonged to Gross.

While searching the car, Deal found a loaded .22 caliber pistol under the seat and numerous miscellaneous merchandise and pills in the trunk.

The men were charged with using stolen tags and carrying a concealed weapon by the department pending a trace of the items found in the car.

It was the second hijacking of a United plane at the Reno airport in less than three months.

On June 2, a man wearing a white pillow case over his head walked on to a United 727 jetliner and demanded $200,000 and parachutes.

Passengers aboard the flight, which was en route from New York to San Francisco, were allowed to deplane. The hijacker held three stewardesses and two pilots hostage, then shifted to another UAL plane when told that the first one was low on fuel and that one of its three engines was bad.

The hijacker bailed out about 25 miles south of Reno within minutes after the second plane took off.

Robb D. Heady, 22, of Reno, a Vietnam veteran and sports parachutist, was captured the following day in a desert area and charged with the hijacking. Some $40,000 of the ransom money was left aboard the plane and the FBI recovered the other $160,000 soon after Heady's arrest.

On June 8, United was fined $1,000 by the Federal Aviation Administration for failing to carry out proper screening procedures in connection with still another hijack—the April 7 piracy of a Denver to Los Angeles flight by Richard McCoy Jr.

McCoy later was convicted of air piracy and sentenced to 45 years in prison. He had bailed out of the commandered jetliner near Provo, Utah, where he was arrested and the $500,000 ransom he had demanded was recovered.

Profit Penalty

The real crunch of the price commission's policies and regulations is about to be felt by some of the many corporations turning in record earnings reports. To the general economist, the large number of improved earnings statements is a strong indication that economic revival throughout the economy is taking place.

To the price regulators, however, it means that some companies may be violating the commission's profit margin rule. The regulators intend to see that those firms which are in violation roll back prices until their margins return to commission standards.

Under commission rules, a company's profit margin may not exceed that of the two best out of three years preceding the imposition of controls. The rule applies only to firms which have been granted price increases since the controls were adopted.

In a hypothetical situation, if company A was granted a price increase six months ago and now is turning in an earnings volume greater than its pre-control experience, the commission has the power to force the company not only to rescind its price increases, but to roll prices back until its profit margin again is in compliance.

It is a procedure which is intended to penalize those firms which raised prices during the period of the controls and then experienced a healthy profit recovery. More will be heard of the inequities and effects of this rule in the months ahead.

The end of the year is the deadline the commission has imposed on itself to take action against those who may be in violation of the profit margin rule.

At the age of 13, I weigh 140 lbs. I have stretch marks on my breasts and on my hips. I'm afraid to go on a diet because the marks may become worse. I can't talk about this to anyone, and don't know where to turn.

Dear Miss T.:
As the name indicates, "stretch" marks are the result of stretching and tearing of the fibers of the skin and the underlying tissue. These marks are seen rather frequently on the breasts and abdomen following pregnancy.

A sudden gain of weight will understandably distend the skin. The marks will probably remain, but that should not dissuade you from losing weight.

It is distressing to learn that a girl of your age cannot talk over such a problem with your parents, who are the real source of comfort and understanding. With their help and the direction of your doctor, you will not be alone. Turning to them is the beginning of your greater emotional security.

Value For The Dollar

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

If one applied personal standards of net worth to the external economic position of the U.S., it would appear that our country is not so badly off. The unwanted U.S. government paper held by foreign central banks must be around $30 to $35 billion. Naturally, if this sum were presented for gold, it would break Fort Knox. On the other hand, the U.S. is owed an estimated $46 billion (including $18 billion in World War I debts) by foreign governments. If we could collect even the amount owed to us on the post World War I account we would be fairly close to external solvency. (Our $465 billion internal debt is, of course, another matter.)

One of Connecticut's ingenious Congressmen, Representative Stewart McKinney, has caught the right pitch in applying the worth concept to the international dollar situation. Along with Congressman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, and Thomas Morgan of Pennsylvania, a mixed bag of Republicans and Democrats, he has sponsored a resolution that would require the U.S. Treasury to outline a program of collections for foreign debts past due.

McKinney wants the Treasury to prepare an accurate list of the debts so that we can deal specifically with countries like Russia that are intent on fudging the problem. We say the Soviets owe us $222 million on World War II Lend-Lease; Moscow says it is only $111 million. We contend we have $800 million coming from Russia on civilian goods; she says it is only $300 million. Some hard negotiating is in order, but we have trade bait to offer.

The Fairfield County end of Connecticut, which McKinney represents, happens to be very net worth conscious. It wants full value on the dollar. So we have Senator Lowell Weicker, who held McKinney's job before going on to the upper house, sniffing around the Highway Trust Fund to see how much money could be reasonably diverted from a $5.7 billion annual highway building trust to buses, railroads or subways. Along with Senator Kennedy of Massachusetts he thinks $2.8 billion should go to the states for any type of transportation they choose. "Now that the grass of the suburbs is giving way to one more highway," says Weicker, "even the advantaged are getting nervous as they see vertical concrete turning horizontal."

What is interesting about the Weicker-Kennedy bill for transportation is that it contemplates reallocating funds that have already been authorized. No additional inflation here.

Representative McKinney recently defeated James Ferris, another value conscious Greenwich (Connecticut) man, for the Republican Congressional nomination. While McKinney has served his district well, he would be doing even better if he took over one of Ferris's ideas.

In a notable campaign position paper, James Ferris suggested that the American people be allowed to use the annual inflationary loss of value of their money as a tax credit. He proposed that Congress pass a bill that would take the current percentage increase in the money supply and let the taxpayers multiply it "times savings of various kinds — bank accounts, retirement plans, pension funds, cash value of life insurance policies, and current earned income. The product would be taken as a tax credit for that year."

Such a method of income tax computation would, so Ferris says, put pressure on government to discontinue the "dishonest and destructive" habit of raising money by inflationary printing of I.O.U.'s.

Still another value-conscious constituent of McKinney and Weicker is economist Henry Hazlitt of Wilton, Conn., who has been testifying before the Republican Platform Committee in Miami Beach. Hazlitt wants the Republicans to alter the capital gains tax to allow for depreciation of the dollar. Mr. Hazlitt argues quite rightly that a man who bought a house for $20,000 in 1939 and sold it for twice that in 1972 has achieved nothing more than a capital loss in receiving his inflated $40,000. Senator George McGovern, please take note.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. In order to be considered for publication, they must bear the correct name and address of the writer. Anonymous letters and those signed with the request that signatures be withheld will not be accepted for publication. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Editor:
During the last week and a half, two stories have appeared in the Circleville Herald which have caused some embarrassment to Mr. Gary Dean, band director at C.H.S. and to the Trustees of the Scioto Society, who are planning the September 9 dedication of the Sugar Loaf mountain amphitheatre.

In an article concerning the dedication which appeared in the Aug. 10 issue and an article dated Aug. 9 (I believe) concerning band camp, it was erroneously stated that the C.H.S. band would appear at the Amphitheatre dedication.

The band was most certainly asked to play during the afternoon festivities preceding the appearance of the Cincinnati Symphony, but, due to a previous commitment, Mr. Dean was unable to accept the invitation. His gracious refusal was accepted with regret by the committee members and dismissed from their minds.

The two articles caused a misunderstanding which has not been disastrous, but certainly very annoying. It is hoped that this letter will clear up an unfortunate misconception.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

by LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

Is there a cure for seasickness? I love being on boats, but dread the penalty I must pay, even on a large ocean-going vessel.

Mr. R.T., Ore.

People vary in their reaction to motion sickness. Some people can withstand the roughest seas while others are made miserable in a rowboat on a lake.

I have known frail, delicate women who take their three hearty meals at sea in the stormiest weather. Their hardy male compatriots are lying out on deck trying to put down their chicken sandwiches, certain they will never see land again.

Motion sickness on ships, planes, automobiles and trains upsets the mechanism of balance which lies deep in the inner ear. Here, three tiny canals, the semicircular canals, act to stabilize the balance of the body. Through these delicate canals, a fluid constantly circulates and compensates for the change of body position.

There now are a great many excellent drugs for the control, but not the cure, of motion sickness. These drugs were first used extensively during World War II to reduce the sensitivity of the inner ear balance center.

Many people who have found these drugs to be ineffective seem to be using them wrongly. Adults should take the prescribed dose about an hour before embarking on a journey. Then it is most important that a smaller dose, perhaps half a pill, be taken about three times a day throughout the voyage.

By sustaining the drug in small quantities the chances are much better that the annoying symptoms of motion sickness can be controlled.

The Business World

By JOHN CUNIFF

NEW YORK (AP) — When a store is being altered and is framed in scaffolding, it isn't uncommon to see a brightly painted sign announcing "Business as usual."

Business can't go on as usual of course, but no enterprising businessman admits that. He believes that a growing business accepts the challenges and turns them to advantage. It adjusts.

On an immensely larger scale, it may be said that something of the same is occurring in the American business environment today. It is being altered. The rules are changing. The scaffolding is up—but so is the sign.

The most obvious change is in the rules for pricing. Not long ago this was largely a private matter, a decision the company made in its own interests, for its own good.

No longer. As has been demonstrated by an unacceptably high rate of inflation, price is public. Today's huge corporations, if left to follow the old rule, are fully capable of challenging a governmental anti-inflation program.

Recognition of this has been made official through various government bodies, particularly the Price Commission. But the change is even greater. Presidential power also is being used to intervene directly.

Pricing therefore has become political too, as General Motors, Chrysler, Ford and American Motors understand fully. If the President doesn't want a price increase you must consider the consequences of challenging him.

If you sit on the board of directors you feel a few splinters. You might, in fact, find it so uncomfortable as to quit, but if you don't you at least study the issues before you sign anything. And you have a big liability insurance policy too, because the stockholders might sue you.

As a director, and therefore as an insider, you may find yourself in a dilemma when it comes to trading the company's stock. Once it was easier to look after your interests; at the hint of bad news you dumped your shares.

You have to watch that sort of thing today. Investigations into the trading activities of the Penn Central before its collapse have put the heat on the use of inside information for personal financial advantage.

In Wall Street, the clampdown on some of the more bizarre, scandalous, free-wheeling practices has thrown a lot of brokerage houses out of business, and those that remain now must run their affairs like businesses instead of games.

In manufacturing, some companies still haven't adjusted to the notion that they are responsible for the safety of their products, but this concept is firmly part of the new environment, as the automakers are learning.

Business is learning also that a company's obligation isn't solely to make money for its stockholders. In the new environment, it must avoid polluting, promote race and sex equality, be a good citizen.

All this, it is said, is for the public good. And while some companies insist it is anything but that, others have embraced the public good thesis in circumstances that differ from any of those mentioned before.

These companies, accustomed to taking not only product orders but instructions from Washington, seem increasingly to feel that they should also rely on Washington to bail them out financially. For the sake of national security, jobs, investors—for the public good, that is.

Most companies, however, appear to be adjusting nicely, if you can judge from the financial statements being issued and, in general, you can, notwithstanding loose accounting practices soon to be tightened.

There's scaffolding all around, yes, but that sign is hanging too.

If we could collect even the amount owed to us on the post World War I account we would be fairly close to external solvency. (Our $465 billion internal debt is, of course, another matter.)

One of Connecticut's ingenious Congressmen, Representative Stewart McKinney, has caught the right pitch in applying the worth concept to the international dollar situation. Along with Congressman Wilbur Mills of Arkansas, and Thomas Morgan of Pennsylvania, a mixed bag of Republicans and Democrats, he has sponsored a resolution that would require the U.S. Treasury to outline a program of collections for foreign debts past due.

McKinney wants the Treasury to prepare an accurate list of the debts so that we can deal specifically with countries like Russia that are intent on fudging the problem. We say the Soviets owe us $222 million on World War II Lend-Lease; Moscow says it is only $111 million. We contend we have $800 million coming from Russia on civilian goods; she says it is only $300 million. Some hard negotiating is in order, but we have trade bait to offer.

The Fairfield County end of Connecticut, which McKinney represents, happens to be very networth conscious. It wants full value on the dollar. So we have Senator Lowell Weicker, who held McKinney's job before going on to the upper house, sniffing around the Highway Trust Fund to see how much money could be reasonably diverted from a $5.7 billion annual highway building total to buses, railroads or subways. Along with Senator Kennedy of Massachusetts he thinks $2.8 billion should go to the states for any type of transportation they choose. "Now that the grass of the suburbs is giving way to one more highway," says Weicker, "even the advantaged are getting nervous as they see vertical concrete turning horizontal."

What is interesting about the Weicker-Kennedy bill for transportation is that it contemplates reallocating funds that have already been authorized. No additional inflation here.

Representative McKinney recently defeated James Ferris, another value-conscious Greenwich (Connecticut) man, for the Republican Congressional nomination. While McKinney has served his district well, he would be doing even better if he took over one of Ferris's ideas.

In a notable campaign position paper, James Ferris suggested that the American people be allowed to use the annual inflationary loss of value of their money as a tax credit. He proposed that Congress pass a bill that would take the current percentage increase in the money supply and let the taxpayers multiply it "times savings of various kinds — bank accounts, retirement plans, pension funds, cash value of life insurance policies, and current earned income. The product would be taken as a tax credit for that year."

Such a method of income tax computation would, so Ferris says, put pressure on government to discontinue the "dishonest and destructive" habit of raising money by inflationary printing of I.O.U.'s.

Still another value-conscious constituent of McKinney and Weicker is economist Henry Hazlitt of Wilton, Conn., who has been testifying before the Republican Platform Committee in Miami Beach. Hazlitt wants the Republicans to alter the capital gains tax to allow for depreciation of the dollar. Mr. Hazlitt argues quite rightly that a man who bought a house for $20,000 in 1939 and sold it for twice that in 1972 has achieved nothing more than a capital loss in receiving his inflated $40,000. Senator George McGovern, please take note.

Letter To The Editor

EDITOR'S NOTE — We welcome letters to the editor. In order to be considered for publication, they must bear the correct name and address of the writer. Anonymous letters and those signed with the request that signatures be withheld will not be accepted for publication. Opinions expressed in this column are those of the writers and not necessarily those of The Herald.

Dear Editor:

During the last week and a half, two stories have appeared in the Circleville Herald which have caused some embarrassment to Mr. Gary Dean, band director at C.H.S. and to the Trustees of the Scioto Society, who are planning the September 9 dedication of the Sugar Loaf mountain amphitheatre.

In an article concerning the dedication which appeared in the Aug. 10 issue and an article dated Aug. 9 (I believe) concerning band camp, it was erroneously stated that the C.H.S. band would appear at the Amphitheatre dedication.

The band was most certainly asked to play during the afternoon festivities preceding the appearance of the Cincinnati Symphony, but, due to a previous commitment, Mr. Dean was unable to accept the invitation. His gracious refusal was accepted with regret by the committee members and dismissed from their minds.

The two articles caused a misunderstanding which has not been disastrous, but certainly very annoying. It is hoped that this letter will clear up an unfortunate misconception.

Underground Papers Lose Radical Image

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

With less emphasis on bomb-making and more on day-to-day community problems, underground newspapers continue to grow in numbers and influence.

There are at least 400 of these journals published weekly compared with about 200 a few years ago. Underground editors say their total readership is about 20 million.

At the same time that underground papers have folded in major cities like New York and San Francisco, they are taking root in such unlikely turf as Apopka, Fla.; Anniston, Ala.; and McConnellsburg, Pa.

"There isn't a town with a population of more than 50,000 that doesn't have an underground paper," says Max Scherr, founder and editor of the Berkeley Barb.

Since their major mushrooming in the late '60s, the papers have been changing to reflect the new moods of the youth movement. Where once the pages promoted urban guerrilla warfare, now they delve into local problems and issues of interest to a wide range of citizens.

"The underground press represented the vanguard of the revolutionary struggle," says Tom Forcade, a Zippie, Washington correspondent for the Underground Press Syndicate and self-styled authority on the underground scene.

"But what did all those kids living in hippie pads care about bombs? Now the papers are becoming much more relevant and realistic. They write about the alternative institutions of the community like day care centers, the food co-ops, the health clinics."

The papers still speak to the generation that created the counter-culture. They are anti-establishment, enduringly anti-war and anti-Nixon. Revolutionary rhetoric and scatological phrases spice the editorials. Marijuana smoke-ins make headlines. The ads sell sandals and water beds and incense. And the personals, unprintable anywhere else, advertise "Handsome male 30 seeks attractive woman."

Many underground papers have begun aiming at broader audience, adding book and movie reviews, activities, meetings and demonstrations that aren't covered as daily fare in traditional papers.

Underground papers have not only popularized everything in the counter-culture from drugs to dropping out, they have also aided the momentum of causes like ecology, women's liberation and peace.

Activists credit the Ann Arbor Sun for helping elect two radicals to the City Council and for lower fines for marijuana smokers. Boston After Dark and the Phoenix claim their investigative stories were instrumental in halting construction of the Park Plaza urban renewal project that many felt threatened the community.

Serving the needs of the underground press are two news-gathering organizations, Liberation News Service and the Underground Press Syndicate.

LNS sends out 10 to 18 stories twice a week to about 500 newspapers and 300 other subscribers who pay anywhere from $200 to $500 a year for the service. A recent packet included stories about Vietnam veteran drug addiction, the Coca-Cola Corporation, interviews with the Paris Peace delegation, and male chauvinism in Gay Liberation.

The Underground Press Syndicate, whose editorial collective includes Jack O'Lantern and Rosa Mimosa, has been in operation since 1966. It has 450 subscribing papers, of which 250 are syndicate members who have reprint rights of each other's copy.

The sturdiest of the underground papers usually have a life expectancy of two or three years. Some stop publication for a few months to get some money together, like Space City! in Houston. Some take a summer vacation, like the New York Ace.

Financial difficulties and staff dissension are primarily to blame for the burial of some underground papers. But many that fail do so simply for lack of enthusiasm.

"I think the time for this kind of paper is over," said editor Thomas D'Antoni in May upon the death of Harry, 2½ years old in Baltimore.

The East Village Other in New York folded a year ago. "There was a loss of momentum. The paper was resistant to change. There was something new in the air and the EVO didn't feel it and the staff was dissatisfied," says Rec

Grant A. Drennen, associate director for the Mid-Ohio Health Planning Federation and Al F. Hartman of the Federation staff attended the Thursday meeting of the Planning Council.

Smugglers are ripping off Uncle Sam to the tune of millions of dollars worth of contraband military surplus, Sen. Abraham Ribicoff has concluded after three days of Senate hearings.

The Connecticut Democrat demanded Thursday that the government tighten controls over surplus military goods intended to be sold or given to friendly nations or to be scrapped.

"The American government has abdicated its duty to guard and dispose of its own surplus property," Ribicoff said. "It is one of the most disgraceful derelictions of duty in the post-war period."

Ribicoff blamed lax enforcement for the recent theft of 34 one-ton Nike Ajax anti-aircraft rockets from a U.S. surplus depot in West Germany.

Ribicoff added, "Wholesale lots of weapons and their component parts have been smuggled out of American war-surplus depots in working condition."

American officials, he said, "now admit that they do not know what has become of much of the weapons of war declared excess to the needs of our military."

Harrison, Walnut Ambulance Service Approved By PCHPC

The application to establish emergency ambulance service for Harrison and Walnut townships by the Harrison township trustees was approved by the Pickaway County Health Planning Council during a meeting held Thursday in the dining room at Berger Hospital.

Mrs. Sterling Poling, council chairman presided for the meeting at which approval for funds for extending water service to the new Pickaway-Ross Vocational School was also made.

Underground Papers Lose Radical Image

By JURATE KAZICKAS
Associated Press Writer

With less emphasis on bomb-making and more on day-to-day community problems, underground newspapers continue to grow in numbers and influence.

There are at least 400 of these journals published weekly compared with about 200 a few years ago. Underground editors say their total readership is about 20 million.

At the same time that underground papers have folded in major cities like New York and San Francisco, they are taking root in such unlikely turf as Apopka, Fla.; Anniston, Ala. and McConnellsburg, Pa.

"There isn't a town with a population of more than 50,000 that doesn't have an underground paper," says Max

Scherr, founder and editor of the Berkeley Barb.

Since their major mushrooming in the late '60s, the papers have been changing to reflect the new moods of the youth movement. Where once the pages promoted urban guerrilla warfare, now they delve into local problems and issues of interest to a wide range of citizens.

"The underground press represented the vanguard of the revolutionary struggle," says Tom Forceade, a Zippie, Washington correspondent for the Underground Press Syndicate and self-styled authority on the underground scene.

"But what did all those kids living in hippie pads care about bombs? Now the papers are becoming much more relevant and realistic. They write about the alternative institutions of the community like day care centers, the food co-ops, the health clinics."

The papers still speak to the generation that created the counter-culture. They are anti-establishment, enduringly anti-war and anti-Nixon. Revolutionary rhetoric and scatological phrases spice the editorials. Marijuana smoke-ins make headlines. The ads sell sandals and water beds and incense. And the personals, unprintable anywhere else, advertise "Handsome male 30 seeks attr. sensuous woman."

Many underground papers have begun aiming at broader audience, adding book and movie reviews, activities, meetings and demonstrations that aren't covered as daily fare in traditional papers.

Underground papers have not only popularized everything in the counter-culture from drugs to dropping out, they have also aided the momentum of causes like ecology, women's liberation and peace.

Activists credit the Ann Arbor Sun for helping elect two radicals to the City Council and for lower fines for marijuana smokers. Boston After Dark and the Phoenix claim their investigative stories were instrumental in halting construction of the Park Plaza urban renewal project that many felt threatened the community.

Serving the needs of the underground press are two news-gathering organizations, Liberation News Service and the Underground Press Syndicate.

LNS sends out 10 to 18 stories twice a week to about 500 newspapers and 300 other subscribers who pay anywhere from $200 to $500 a year for the service. A recent packet included stories about Vietnam veteran drug addiction, the Coca-Cola Corporation, interviews with the Paris Peace delegation, and male chauvinism in Gay Liberation.

The Underground Press Syndicate, whose editorial collective includes Jack O'Lantern and Rosa Mimosa, has been in operation since 1966. It has 450 subscribing papers, of which 250 are syndicate members who have reprint rights of each other's copy.

The sturdiest of the underground papers usually have a life expectancy of two or three years. Some stop publication for a few months to get some money together, like Space City! in Houston. Some take a summer vacation, like the New York Ace.

Financial difficulties and staff dissension are primarily to blame for the burial of some underground papers. But many that fail do so simply for lack of enthusiasm.

"I think the time for this kind of paper is over," said editor Thomas D'Antoni in May upon the death of Harry, 2½ years old in Baltimore.

The East Village Other in New York folded a year ago. "There was a loss of momentum. The paper was resistant to change. There was something new in the air and the EVO didn't feel it and the staff was dissatisfied," says Rec

Harrison, Walnut Ambulance Service Approved By PCHPC

The application to establish emergency ambulance service for Harrison and Walnut townships by the Harrison township trustees was approved by the Pickaway County Health Planning Council during a meeting held Thursday in the dining room at Berger Hospital.

Mrs. Sterling Poling, council chairman presided for the meeting at which approval for funds for extending water service to the new Pickaway-Ross Vocational School was also made.

The Council responded to a preliminary application for funds for a new 100 bed nursing home by encouraging the applicant to make a formal application to enable the Council to determine what services would be offered which are not now available.

Hugh Barnhill, environmentalist with the County Health Department, reported on the soil tests now being made prior to housing construction in the rural area. Barnhill explained that the county has 45 different soil types of which about 79 per cent are not suitable for the sewage disposal units. He also stated that three years ago there were 60 applications for sewage permits in the county and this year there have already been 300.

John Reid, administrator of Berger Hospital reported that while occupancy at the hospital is under the number for the same period last year, recent months have shown a definite increase in the number of patients.

Grant A. Drennen, associate director for the Mid-Ohio Health Planning Federation and Al F. Hartman of the Federation staff attended the Thursday meeting of the Planning Council.

Smugglers Get Surplus Military Gear

WASHINGTON (AP) — Smugglers are ripping off Uncle Sam to the tune of millions of dollars worth of contraband military surplus. Sen. Abraham Ribicoff has concluded after three days of Senate hearings.

The Connecticut Democrat demanded Thursday that the government tighten controls over surplus military goods intended to be sold or given to friendly nations or to be scrapped.

"The American government has abdicated its duty to guard and dispose of its own surplus property," Ribicoff said. "It is one of the most disgraceful derelictions of duty in the post-war period."

Ribicoff blamed lax enforcement for the recent theft of 34 one-ton Nike Ajax anti-aircraft rockets from a U.S. surplus depot in West Germany.

Ribicoff added, "Wholesale lots of weapons and their component parts have been smuggled out of American war-surplus depots in working condition."

American officials, he said, "now admit that they do not know what has become of much of the weapons of war declared excess to the needs of our military."

Charles Goslin Is Speaker For Garden Club Meeting

Scenic slides were shown for the program of Pickaway County Garden Club recently in the social rooms of First Presbyterian Church.

Charles Goslin gave a narration as he showed the slides. He asked members to take a walk with him through his garden of his weeds.

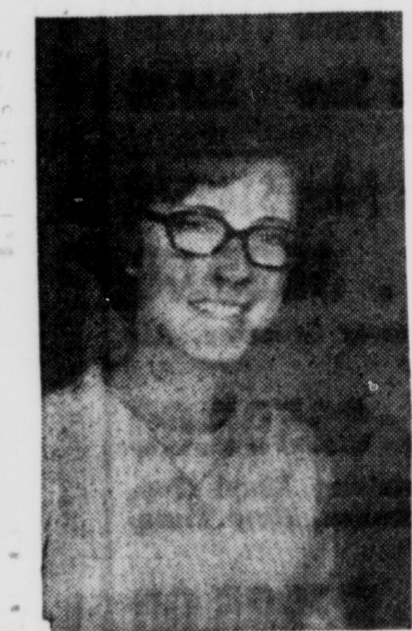

In most locations nature scenes were shown both in winter and summer. Possum and bats of Hocking Valley were shown, beautiful upper and lower falls of Hocking River and the pre-glacial fields.

At Conkle Hollow the rock cliff was 240 feet high and the rocks showed their full color. Ash Cave in January portrayed a large ice dome transforming the scenery.

Mr. Goslin said that Cedar Falls was given its name due to so many hemlock trees there. The pictures of Crane Hollow showed its ruggedness. Cantwell Cliffs was near the center of the garden. Plants of reindeer lichens, camp moss, British soldiers, creeping phlox, Pennsylvania sage grass, varieties of violets and penny wort were found.

Hemlock of Fairfield County were brought from the north with the glacier. Cedar Falls in the summer is a ghost garden of fungus including mushrooms, Indian pipe, scouring rums, papoose root or paregoric, which the Indians used for their babies were found.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Priest Goes To Bat For Secretaries

DEAR ABBY: To recap an interesting letter in the Cleveland Plain Dealer: A receptionist in a large business office failed to recognize a valued customer because he wasn't dressed as he usually was, so her boss chastised her, causing her to spend the weekend in bed with a migraine.

Console the poor lady! Nuns who wear Sears dresses or "contemporary pastels" must now produce identification when they request "discounts to religious" while shopping.

Clergymen who insist on walking about in casual mufti cannot complain when they're herded like loi polloi; they also must produce identification for "clergy discounts."

The moral is: If the customer is so valued and esteemed, but dresses in a manner not associated with his August presence, he should be prepared to identify himself and not expect hardworking secretaries to discern his invisible "Roman collar."

Gen. Montgomery, and every general since Napoleon, wore a peculiar noggin-piece to avoid being accidentally shot by one of his own men, as was Stonewall Jackson, and more recently and Israel general.

Accidents, as befell the poor secretary, do happen. Most understanding persons smile through the discomfiture of not being instantly recognized, Bob Hopes does. Sincerely,

FATHER LIEDERBACK, CLEVELAND

DEAR FATHER: Bob Hope's most readily identifying feature is an instantly recognized as a general's noggin-piece. Every "nose" HOP.

DEAR ABBY: Two weeks ago my 18 year old daughter moved out of the house, announcing that she was taking a job and renting a room.

At that time her 14 year old sister moved into her room, after working for three days to clean it up.

Two weeks later the 18-year-old came home and demanded her own room back, so naturally she got it.

Now the 14-year-old is heart broken. Who was right?

MOTHER OF BOTH

A few weeks after school began (last year) some male teachers were talking about some of the girls in their classes.

One of them said, "I can hardly keep my mind on my teaching because of the way some girls are dressed!" (I am sure this is the case in 99 per cent of the schools in America.)

Many girls come to school wearing mini-skirts, and the teachers must teach in full view of their underclothing, which is bad enough. But try teaching with girls in your class who have absolutely NOTHING on underneath!

Some teachers say nothing because they enjoy looking. Others are too embarrassed to say anything.

Parents say nothing because they don't make parents any more like my Mom and Dad.

So, you tell me. What is a teacher to do when tempted? Keep his eyes off? Ha! In my opinion the girls need to put something ON!

Gang Battle Drug-Inspired

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Police Chief Gerald Rademaker says a fight between two West Side gangs was precipitated by drugs.

The Wednesday night fight between the Memphis Avenue gang and the Dawning gang left seven persons injured. Rademaker said he had received reports that the Memphis gang allegedly stole drugs from members of the Dawning gang, resulting in the skirmish.

About 25 persons from the groups clashed with knives and spiked clubs near an elementary school on Memphis. Ten persons arrested, including six adults, were released when no one pressed charges.

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Educator comedian Bill Cosby is returning to television in both his guises during the 1972-73 season. On Monday nights he'll present his CBS variety show, and on Saturday morning he'll star in "Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids."

Sometimes it's hard to tell when Cosby the comic stops and teacher Cosby begins. With the Saturday morning show, he'll combine both functions.

Cosby will appear to introduce the animated "Fat Albert and the Cosby Kids," based on the humorous stories he has told of his youth. The cartoons won't be your ordinary slambang Saturday morning entertainment.

CBS and Filmation, producer of the cartoons, have organized a panel of experts to review the shows for their effect on young audiences. Heading the panel is Dr. Gordon Berry, assistant dean of the school of education at UCLA. He explained how the panel functions:

"We have a wide spread of disciplines represented — men and women who are expert in such areas as social welfare, psychiatry, sociology, child psychology, education and communication. In addition, we can go outside the panel when other fields of expertise are needed."

"I work closely with the producer and the writers, feeding them ideas from the panel on what kinds of story premises might be of value and what story lines would work with children. 'Sesame Street' and 'The Electric Company' aim at the areas of teaching, reading and writing. Our area is in teaching values and value conflicts."

A lofty aim for a Saturday morning cartoon, but Berry believes it is attainable.

"The important thing is to find stories that teach without preaching," he said. "The panel looks at the scripts and advises on what the possible effect would be on children. Supposing there was a cowboys and Indians story. We might suggest that the story line be changed so there was no shooting of Indians, or no shooting at all."

He added, "The ending of the stories are most important. We like to see the message get over — and then see that the message is reinforced. All this must be subtly done, of course."

Nobody was hurt by those blasts, but two soldiers were seriously injured when an explosion blew out the front of a house in a district where both Catholics and Protestants live. Other troops fired at a man seen running from the scene, but they missed him.

The sniper's victim was the 511th confirmed death in the three years of violence in Northern Ireland.

The Irish Republican Army bombed a Protestant bar at lunchtime Thursday, injuring 55 persons, none seriously. The IRA claimed the bar was a headquarters for Protestant murder gangs.

The Ulster Defense Association, a Protestant vigilante army that claims 40,000 men, announced it was sending out antibomb patrols and would mete out "UDA justice" to any bombers it caught.

After midnight two beer barrels packed with about 250 pounds of gelignite exploded in a Catholic district of East Belfast, damaging buildings for 150 feet around.

Shortly after, the army reported, a gang of armed men hijacked a car and told the owner not to report it for two hours. He didn't, and the gang stuffed 100-150 pounds of gelignite into the car and set it off outside a Catholic club, wrecking the building.

4 Arrested In Slaying

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland police have taken three men and a woman into custody in connection with the slaying of suburban Seven Hills insurance agent Fred Ciccarelli.

Ciccarelli's body was found Tuesday night inside the trunk of his car on the outskirts of Mentor in Lake County. He had been shot twice and his body cut in half at the hips. Police believe Ciccarelli, 58, was killed here and his body taken to Mentor.

Police said the series of arrests started when a 30-year-old man driving a car linked with the slaying was stopped on the city's East Side Thursday afternoon.

The man told police the car belonged to a friend he had taken to Mt. Sinai Hospital Tuesday. The hospitalized man, 22, was placed under police guard. He is in satisfactory condition with third-degree burns of the face, neck, arms and upper thighs.

Police then went to the home of the 30-year-old man and arrested his 19-year-old brother and then later in the evening arrested the 20-year-old wife of the man under police guard in the hospital.

Tuesday by any delegate, but it would take the majority of six delegations to force a roll-call on that or any issue.

Sufficient votes do seem available to force a roll-call vote on the reapportionment plan. Opponents of the plan approved on a voice vote by the national committee are mostly from large, urban states. They see a better chance of overturning it in the full convention than in the committee where each state has three votes.

The plan adopted by the committee gives each state a base of votes reckoned from its electoral vote. But each state carried by the GOP in the 1972 election gets 4% bonus delegates, whether the state is California or Alaska, while additional bonus votes would depend on the electoral vote of the states carried by the Republicans.

Opponents said that any plan that awards bonus delegates by states would be ruled unconstitutional by the federal courts.

A rival plan promoted by delegates from larger states would give bonus delegates according to the GOP vote in each congressional district with additional ones for election of Republican governors, senators or congressmen.

The national committee approved without dissent reforms in the delegate selection process aimed at producing equality for women within the GOP and increasing the number of young people and minorities among the delegates.

On the Democratic side, McGovern said in Milwaukee that he is exploring ways in which the government might use tax money to aid religious schools. He also renewed his call for an impartial panel to investigate the June 17 break-in and attempted bugging of Democratic headquarters in Washington.

In Denver, McGovern running mate Sargent Shriver told an airport news conference he believes "in my heart" that AFL-CIO President George Meany will vote for the Democratic ticket in November even if he doesn't publicly endorse it.

HAMILTON, Ohio (AP)—A Newport, Ky. woman killed while walking along Int. 75 Aug. 10 but not identified until Thursday night, was hitchhiking to Miamisburg, Ohio, to visit relatives.

The Ohio Highway Patrol was not certain, however, why Mrs. Joyce Herald, 40, was in the high speed lane when she was struck and killed by a north-bound motorist.

She was not identified by her husband, Dennis, until Thursday because he was unaware that she had not arrived in Miamisburg, the Butler County coroner's office reported.

Clad in a blouse and blue jeans, the mother of four carried no identification, the patrol said, only a house key and a $5 bill.

NEWPORT, Ky. (AP) — Newport nightspots were "quiet" despite the pullout of 17 Kentucky State Police according to Night Police Chief Donald Faulkner late Thursday.

"We're going to miss them," said Faulkner, adding that the additional force helped Newport police blanket the town.

The Fraternal Order of Police, Lodge Twp., of Newport meanwhile called for 15 additional police for the local force to replace the state officers.

The Kentucky State Police were invited into Newport following the gangland-style killing of nightlife figure Samson "Sammy" Eisner, 46, the third shooting in three weeks in the 1.8 square mile city of 30,000.

Newport Mayor Roland Vories invited the state officers in following the shootings and continued reports of an upsurge in prostitution and vice.

Not one vice arrest was made during the 10-day stay by the state officers although nearly 200 other arrests were made, most of them misdemeanors and traffic. The state officers did recover several stolen cars and made burglary arrests.

Small Mine Owner Denies Work Conditions Unsafe

HARLAN, Ky. (AP) — The owner of the mine rated the nation's "least safe" says he'd "close right up and go home" if he thought anyone would be hurt in his mine.

"An unsafe mine just ain't worth it," says 42-year-old Bob Kelley.

But Kelley doesn't believe his mine is unsafe, and he thought the U.S. Bureau of Mines was joking when the agency announced recently that the mine was ranked least safe.

"It's enough for me and my men to make a decent living, though, without having to go on food stamps," Kelley said.

He said he thought the 1969 Coal Mine Health and Safety Act was geared to prevent accidents and stop deaths.

"But big mines like them up in West Virginia, with nine men dead and sealed up in the mine, they don't even appear on the ratings list anywhere in the worst 70," Kelley said.

One of his workers, Obie Middleton, came out of the mine.

"Obie," Kelley asked, "would you work in an unsafe mine?"

"Would you if you had six kids?" replied the 29-year old Obie. "I ain't doing nothing to endanger my family."

Meanwhile, Cloyd McDowell, director of the Harlan County Independent Coal Operators Association and the president of the National Independent Coal Operators Association, contends the ratings are just another effort by the Bureau of Mines to drive small operators out of business.

"These mines are as safe, if not safer, than any mine in the country," he said.

And Kelley? "I'm gonna fight them," he said.

Viet Reds Shell Da Nang; 1 Airman Dead, 21 Injured

SAIGON (AP) — Communist forces rained scores of rockets on Da Nang and Cho Lai today, killing or wounding 22 Americans and 72 Vietnamese and destroying or damaging 16 U.S. and South Vietnamese aircraft, allied military spokesmen announced.

It was the worst rocket attack this year on Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city, spokesmen said.

One American airman was killed and 21 American airmen and Army personnel were wounded at the Da Nang Air Base.

Field reports said 10 100-pound rockets killed 27 Vietnamese civilians and wounded 24 when they landed in a densely populated village just outside the base.

Thirty-three other rockets hit the base before dawn in two barrages about three hours apart. The only South Vietnamese military casualty was a wounded airman.

Nine buildings used by the Americans also were damaged lightly, the U.S. Command said.

The last remaining U.S. combat infantry battalion in Vietnam had been patrolling the Da Nang area to keep rocket attacks away from the base and the city. But it was deactivated a week ago, ending the U.S. ground combat role in Vietnam.

At Chu Lai, 50 miles south of Da Nang, two dozen rockets landed in a South Vietnamese military installation and a residential area, the Saigon command said. It reported one Vietnamese civilian and one serviceman killed and 13 civilians and five servicemen wounded.

The U.S. Command also announced that an American adviser was killed Thursday night during a North Vietnamese artillery attack on South Vietnamese positions 10 miles south of Quang Tri City, on the northern front.

Amanda Offers Salary Boost

Amanda-Clearcreek Board of Education, during its regular session Monday night, approved adoption of a 5.5 per cent increase salary schedule for non-certified personnel.

The increase authorized is to be effective at the beginning of the contract year for all qualifying employees with the exception of bus drivers and newly employed maintenance men. It is also subject to approval by the wage and price stabilization board.

In other school matters, board members offered a one-year teaching contract to H. William Cassill in industrial arts area, and employed Mrs. Edna Rose, regular bus driver; Bruce Ebert, Larry Harmon, Elwood Kim, Arlene Holbrook, Sonja Hutchinson, Marvin Valentine, Robert Muller, Cameron Hardie and Neil Kern and substitute drivers. These contracts were awarded on the basis that the applicants complete the workshop, schooling, physicals, tests and any other necessary requirements.

An estimate from Raymond Hedges was accepted by Amanda school chimney repair due to storm damage at $474.

A vote granted the Amanda Village an easement for land for a sanitary sewer in the consideration of one dollar. Later in the meeting, members hired Joe Young as maintenance man for a one-year term at a salary of $10,000.

But Kelley doesn't believe his mine is unsafe, and he thought the U.S. Bureau of Mines was joking when the agency announced recently that the mine was ranked least safe.

"I wouldn't work in no unsafe mine," he said.

The bureau said the mine, cut into Black Mountain, has poor ventilation, a faulty electrical system and a bad roof. The listing of the nation's 10 least safe mines also included two other Harlan County mines.

Kelley, a wiry man, and his two workers drag nearly 25 tons of coal out of his mine daily.

"It's enough for me and my men to make a decent living, though, without having to go on food stamps," Kelley said.

He said he thought the 1969 Coal Mine Health and Safety Act was geared to prevent accidents and stop deaths.

"But big mines like them up in West Virginia, with nine men dead and sealed up in the mine, they don't even appear on the ratings list anywhere in the worst 70," Kelley said.

One of his workers, Obie Middleton, came out of the mine.

"Obie," Kelley asked, "would you work in an unsafe mine?"

"Would you if you had six kids?" replied the 29-year old Obie. "I ain't doing nothing to endanger my family."

Meanwhile, Cloyd McDowell, director of the Harlan County Independent Coal Operators Association and the president of the National Independent Coal Operators Association, contends the ratings are just another effort by the Bureau of Mines to drive small operators out of business.

"These mines are as safe, if not safer, than any mine in the country," he said.

And Kelley? "I'm gonna fight them," he said.

Southwest Ohio Gun Clubs To Seek Stiffer Penalties

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP) — An association of southwestern Ohio gun and hunting clubs and conservationists has been formed to fight for stiffer penalties for illegal gun users because they have been unhappy with the position of the National Rifle Association.

Donald M. Lerner, spokesman for the Citizens for Responsible Firearms Ownership (CRFO), said Thursday the combined clubs have a membership approaching 15,000 and most belong to the NRA.

Lerner told a news conference that the new group feels that the NRA's staunch stand against any gun legislation was "too negative" and that the NRA "has not admitted there is a problem."

"Our preliminary conclusion is that gun laws are little known and little used," said the CRFO director.

He said the group has informed all gun dealers that a boycott of any dealer who continues to sell "Saturday Night Specials" was now on.

Lerner said the cheap, small-caliber guns are used in an expanding number of crimes.

CRFO will ask Cincinnati and other municipalities to adopt laws similar to a new state regulation requiring a mandatory one year jail sentence for those convicted the first time for using a gun in a crime and three years for the second offense. The new state law becomes effective Sept. 1, he said.

"We want arrests, prosecutions and incarcerations. In that order, he said, "for use of guns in crimes."

Alfred Perrot White, another member from the Deer Park Community Rifle Club, said the committee was formed six weeks ago "to take the initiative in developing meaningful approaches to the problem of the misuse of guns. It is affiliated with 15 area associations that have a membership between 10,000 and 15,000."

The organizations included in the CRFO are:

The Ohio Rifle and Pistol Association, the Southwestern Ohio Rifle League, the Deer Park Community Rifle Club, Fairfield Sportsman's Association, Ohio Gun Collectors Association, Cincinnati Revolver Club, Miami Rifle and Pistol Club, Southern Ohio Dog and Game Protective Association, Milford Gun Club, Mount Healthy Isaac Walton League, Sportsman 25 Gun Club, Cincinnati Muzzle-Loading Association, Clermont County Rifle and Pistol Club, and the Society for the Preservation and Encouragement of the Right to Keep and Bear Arms.

Gang Battle Drug-Inspired

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — Cleveland Police Chief Gerald Rademaker says a fight between two West Side gangs was precipitated by drugs.

The Wednesday night fight between the Memphis Avenue gang and the Dawning gang left seven persons injured. Rademaker said he had received reports that the Memphis gang allegedly stole drugs from members of the Dawning gang, resulting in the skirmish.

About 25 persons from the groups clashed with knives and spiked clubs near an elementary school on Memphis. Ten persons arrested, including six adults, were released when no one pressed charges.

GET UP... AND GO

Does the alarm clock get you up? No, it merely tells you it's time to get up. Whether you get out of bed is a matter of discipline.

Church bells don't bring anyone to church. They simply remind Christians where we ought to be on a Sunday morning. The rest is a matter of discipline.

Such discipline, whether it calls you to work or to worship, is fundamentally a trait of your own character. It begins with earnestness, it is strengthened by habit, it is directed toward any responsibility or opportunity which you value.

The value a person puts upon God and his own soul usually determines whether he worships each Sunday, or now and then. Put another way: the man who knows what worship and inspiration can mean in his life never is hesitant to get up and go.

And, of course, discipline has special meaning for a Christian: those who lived and worked with Christ were DISCIPLES.

GET UP... AND GO

Does the alarm clock get you up? No, it merely tells you it's time to get up. Whether you get out of bed is a matter of discipline.

Church bells don't bring anyone to church. They simply remind Christians where we ought to be on a Sunday morning. The rest is a matter of discipline.

Such discipline, whether it calls you to work or to worship, is fundamentally a trait of your own character. It begins with earnestness, it is strengthened by habit, it is directed toward any responsibility or opportunity which you value.

The value a person puts upon God and his own soul usually determines whether he worships each Sunday, or now and then. Put another way: the man who knows what worship and inspiration can mean in his life never is hesitant to get up and go.

And, of course, discipline has special meaning for a Christian: those who lived and worked with Christ were DISCIPLES.

Stage directions are brand new on Ohio campuses this fall, with different casts and programs, in part an outgrowth of the tragic 1970 Kent State campus shootings. The emphasis now is hiring campus police with a couple of years college education.

"There was a time when college security was the ground-sman going around checking buildings at night," said Timothy Fenlon, chief of the 23-man University of Dayton Security Force. "Not any more."

Fenlon, to point up the change, is 26 years old. When Dayton's 8,000 students return to campus this fall, they will be greeted by campus security officers dressed in blue blazers and driving police cruisers with red racing stripes.

At Ohio University in Athens, security officers are switching to green uniforms — the school color. "It's mostly to give the department an identity of its own," said Director Robert Guinn. 48-year-old former FBI agent. He has a 41-man force with an average age of 30 to 35 years.

The thrust of campus security this fall is toward professionalism and service. "We approach security like a city," said Paul Steuer, who heads security at the University of Cincinnati. "Anything that can happen in a city of 35,000 can happen on a campus of 35,000."

"We are trying to professionalize, train, upgrade the department," said Guinn.

"We are trying to open up a relations with the objective of showing that we are a part of the university community and not apart from it," said Donald Hanna, who heads the 67 men and one woman in Ohio State University's public safety department.

"With the type of officer we are recruiting, young in age and going to school, it puts them a little closer to the average person in the community. Being in the classroom with the students helps in developing rapport."

At Miami University, service is a major part of the security. Campus patrol cars are station wagons, which double as ambulances, and as a means of taking injured students to class.

"We're not just policemen to the students," said Donald George, assistant security director.

Hanna of Ohio State agreed. Students "See the officer as not only a law enforcer, which he still is. Now we are involved. We are a community servant also."

Fenlon, young architect of the new look in policemen at Dayton, said: "Any police department has to be guided by the mores of the community in which it operates." He added that University of Dayton police aren't going to let their hair grow and wear blue jeans on duty.

"You're not fooling anybody doing that," he said. "You're insulting the students' intelligence, or else they think you're a fool. Looking like them doesn't make you become one and they know it."

Fenlon said: "On the other hand I think the approach of 'I'm the fuzz and if you step off the sidewalk you're going away' isn't any good, either."

Student involvement is a goal of several schools. Fenlon has begun a cadet program with students furnishing manpower at parking lot guard houses and serving on ambulance crews.

At Ohio University officers visit dormitories for "bull sessions." "That does a hell of a lot more good than having someone preach to them" said Guinn. "The kids really give them a quiz. They get to know one another that way. We encourage it."

James L. Fyke, 36-year-old Kent State security director, assigns manpower from his 48-officer force to work with students in providing ambulance service, transport of injured students and guarding of money.

"We make a great effort to employ present students and graduates," said Fyke. Before the layoffs last year from the peak strength of 104 men, 50 per cent of the Kent State security force were active students serving as patrolmen.

Students sponsored a "student ridership program" in which students rode with campus patrolmen for an hour. One student rode every week of a 10-week quarter and some rode five or six times a quarter.

Ohio University had a "cop in" program last year along the same lines.

Nerly every school has increased training of its security officers. Ohio University runs its own periodic training program. "Sometimes we bring in our own faculty who have psychology, behavioral science background," said Guinn.

"It's a case of continual training as far as my people are concerned," said Charles Lovejoy, University of Toledo security director. Six of his men are enrolled in a police training program.

Ohio State's Hanna and an assistant attended a summer course at Ft. Gordon Ga. this summer to study administrative decision-making for disturbances and crowd control.

After hiring all Miami University officers must take 250 hours of training and attend continuing programs.

Kent State sends its officers away for training, to Case Western Reserve seminars, to Ohio State Highway Patrol Academy and to various short courses.

Professionalism is reaching into scientific gadgets. At Cleveland State, security officers use closed circuit television to cover the relatively new health science complex, and use a pair of outdoor TV cameras atop buildings — one to cover the 115th Street area, another the Euclid Avenue area.

Student attitudes have changed from the violent days of recent years. "Crime changed from campus unrest to some other things going on in the country today," said Lovejoy at Toledo.

Toledo hasn't had a demonstration since 1969. "We don't have any problem at all with them," he said. "We have a different kind of person here. Only about three to five per cent cause us any problem."

Kent State, where four students died in the 1970 confrontation between National Guard and students, still has a security budget well above pre-shooting years. For 1971-1972 Kent State is spending $815,000, against the peak year of 1970-1971 when it was $1.2 million. In 1969-1970, the budget was $121,895.

Most serious problems now are not demonstrations but larceny and narcotics. One armed robbery and several other crimes had narcotic overtones.

"A Mafia type moved in one part of one small dealer trying to muscle in on another dealer," said Director Fyke.

Lt. George at Miami said, "We are mainly observers now at peaceful demonstrations." But, Miami's force is up from 17 to 26 in five years.

Still the issue is touchy. "We have to be very careful not to suppress anybody's right or freedom of expression," said Capt. Steuer of Cincinnati. "We go to extreme effort some times to be sure we are not violating any of these rights."

"We realize that police intervention with legitimate rights can touch off confrontations."

"We're not just policemen to the students," said Donald George, assistant security director.

Hanna of Ohio State agreed. Students "See the officer as not only a law enforcer, which he still is. Now we are involved. We are a community servant also."

Fenlon, young architect of the new look in policemen at Dayton, said: "Any police department has to be guided by the mores of the community in which it operates." He added that University of Dayton police aren't going to let their hair grow and wear blue jeans on duty.

"You're not fooling anybody doing that," he said. "You're insulting the students' intelligence, or else they think you're a fool. Looking like them doesn't make you become one and they know it."

Fenlon said: "On the other hand I think the approach of 'I'm the fuzz and if you step off the sidewalk you're going away' isn't any good, either."

Student involvement is a goal of several schools. Fenlon has begun a cadet program with students furnishing manpower at parking lot guard houses and serving on ambulance crews.

At Ohio University officers visit dormitories for "bull sessions." "That does a hell of a lot more good than having someone preach to them" said Guinn. "The kids really give them a quiz. They get to know one another that way. We encourage it."

James L. Fyke, 36-year-old Kent State security director, assigns manpower from his 48-officer force to work with students in providing ambulance service, transport of injured students and guarding of money.

"We make a great effort to employ present students and graduates," said Fyke. Before the layoffs last year from the peak strength of 104 men, 50 per cent of the Kent State security force were active students serving as patrolmen.

Students sponsored a "student ridership program" in which students rode with campus patrolmen for an hour. One student rode every week of a 10-week quarter and some rode five or six times a quarter.

Ohio University had a "cop in" program last year along the same lines.

Nearly every school has increased training of its security officers. Ohio University runs its own periodic training program. "Sometimes we bring in our own faculty who have psychology, behavioral science background," said Guinn.

"It's a case of continual training as far as my people are concerned," said Charles Lovejoy, University of Toledo security director. Six of his men are enrolled in a police training program.

Ohio State's Hanna and an assistant attended a summer course at Ft. Gordon Ga. this summer to study administrative decision-making for disturbances and crowd control.

After hiring all Miami University officers must take 250 hours of training and attend continuing programs.

Kent State sends its officers away for training, to Case Western Reserve seminars, to Ohio State Highway Patrol Academy and to various short courses.

Professionalism is reaching into scientific gadgets. At Cleveland State, security officers use closed circuit television to cover the relatively new health science complex, and use a pair of outdoor TV cameras atop buildings — one to cover the 115th Street area, another the Euclid Avenue area.

Student attitudes have changed from the violent days of recent years. "Crime changed from campus unrest to some other things going on in the country today," said Lovejoy at Toledo.

Toledo hasn't had a demonstration since 1969. "We don't have any problem at all with them," he said. "We have a different kind of person here. Only about three to five per cent cause us any problem."

Kent State, where four students died in the 1970 confrontation between National Guard and students, still has a security budget well above pre-shooting years. For 1971-1972 Kent State is spending $815,000, against the peak year of 1970-1971 when it was $1.2 million. In 1969-1970, the budget was $121,895.

Most serious problems now are not demonstrations but larceny and narcotics. One armed robbery and several other crimes had narcotic overtones. "A Mafia type moved in one part of one small dealer trying to muscle in on another dealer," said Director Fyke.

Lt. George at Miami said, "We are mainly observers now at peaceful demonstrations." But, Miami's force is up from 17 to 26 in five years.

Still the issue is touchy. "We have to be very careful not to suppress anybody's right or freedom of expression," said Capt. Steuer of Cincinnati. "We go to extreme effort some times to be sure we are not violating any of these rights."

"We realize that police intervention with legitimate rights can touch off confrontations."

With the knowledge in mind that our mother didn't raise any cowards, we raided the dusty, cobwebbed attic of our ancient domain and retrieved our Ouija Board, Crystal Ball, Voodoo Doll, two-headed coin and other articles used in the art of prognostication.

We studied the articles at hand and after a great deal of concentration are now ready to reveal our "resplendent analysis" of the oncoming pro football season.

Taking a good look at the American Conference, we will run the risk of being tarred and feathered by Browns and Bengals fans.

They will be battling for second spot in the Central Division as Terry Bradshaw will provide the offensive punch and Mean Joe Greene the defensive crunch to lead the Pittsburgh Steelers to the title.

We have to go with the Miami Dolphins, who should be better than ever, in the Eastern Division. Despite the return of the great Joe Namath to the Jets, we look for the New England Patriots, with Jim Plunkett leading the revolution, to apply the second place pressure.

In the Western Division, the Kansas City Chiefs have the warriors to bring home the scalps of the other contenders.

If Deacon Jones, obtained from the Rams, stays healthy, the San Diego Chargers should have a defense tough enough to keep the Chiefs on their toes.

Now for a look at the always tough National Conference.

The Staubach-less Dallas Cowboys still have the physical qualities to capture the Eastern Division but the loss of Staubach, who developed into a real leader last year, may cause an attitude problem for the world champions.

However, Craig Morton has the ability to carry them to another title but they'll have to come up with a backup quarterback from somewhere.

If the Cowboys should falter, the Washington Redskins, despite the "Over The Hill Gang" tag, could move in and shoot down the Cowboys.

With Fran Tarkenton adding punch to the Minnesota attack and the Purple Gang defense ripping the opposition, the Vikings should be tops in the Central Division.

John Brockington, aided by some good trades and draft picks, could give the Green Bay Packers the weapons to keep the Vikings hustling.

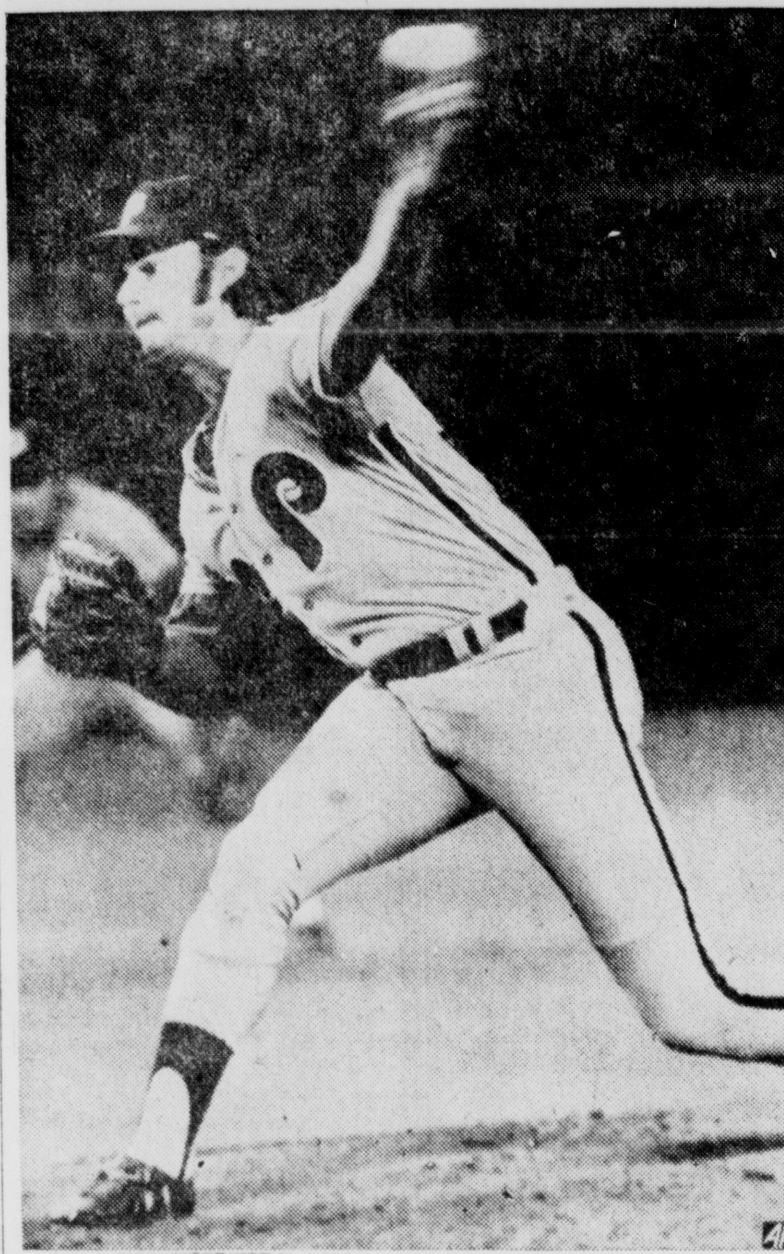

John Brodie has the receivers and Ken Willard and Vic Washington the ground gaining ability which coupled with the tough San Francisco defense should propel the 49ers into the top spot in the Western Division.

As always, the strong Los Angeles Rams will give the 49ers a real battle for the crown.

We're sure that some of the fans will disagree with our view of the situation. But don't call us — we'll call you in December — If we're lucky.

Our "fearless" forecast — The Lions will claw the Browns... Bengals won't be able to catch the slippery Dolphins.

Until next time, have a nice day — be a good sport.

STEVE CARLTON

Phils Turn Back Reds, 9-4

By BRUCE LOWITT
Associated Press Sports Writer

It was a birthday present Steve Carlton had been saving for three weeks. And when he presented it to his wife she had to share it with 53,376 lesser d-lighted onlookers.

"I was very happy I could give it to her," the Philadelphia Phillies' left-hander said Thursday night after winning his 20th game of the baseball season, the first National League pitcher to reach that plateau.

For awhile it appeared he'd have trouble getting it. Then the Phillies unlimbered their muscles and, battering three Cincinnati hurlers for 16 hits, ripped up the Reds 9-4, providing Carlton with his 15th consecutive victory.

Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Mets edged Atlanta 2-1, Houston destroyed Montreal 17-5, the Chicago Cubs nipped San Francisco 3-2, San Diego clipped St. Louis 3-1 and Los Angeles whipped Pittsburgh 4-2.

It was about three weeks ago, just after Steve had won his 15th game of the year and 10th in a row, that Beverly glanced at the Phillies' schedule and figured he'd be going for No. 20 on Aug. 17.

"That's my birthday," she told her husband, "and that's what I want. Your 20th victory." It was a tough order.

"I haven't beaten them since 1967," Carlton said of the Reds. "You have to stay on top of that lineup... You never can relax."

And for awhile, it looked like Cincinnati's streak against him would continue. After Detroit Johnson gave him a lead with a two-run homer, the Reds jumped him for three runs in the third on Dave Concepcion's single, Bill Pludmr's double, Pete Rose's single and Joe Morgan's double.

But Don Money's sacrifice fly and Willie Montanes' two-run homer in the fifth gave him a 5-3 edge and the Phils built on it with two more runs apiece in the sixth and seventh innings.

"We want Steve! We want

Steve!" the fans chanted—and he obliged by returning momentarily to the field to acknowledge their ovation. "It felt great. I want to thank the fans. It was touching. Nothing like it ever happened to me before."

Carlton became the first player in 21 years to win 20 games with a last-place club.

Now a lot of people are wondering if Carlton can do a few things neither he nor anyone else has done in a long time.

The first goal is 19 straight victories, a feat unattained since Rube Marquard of the New York Giants set the modern major league record in 1912.

Then he'll be trying to become the National League's winningest pitcher since 1952, when the Phils' Robin Roberts posted a 28-7 record.

And finally, he'll be shooting for that magic 30 victories. Denny McLain did it for Detroit in 1968 but it hasn't happened in the National League since 1917 when Grover Cleveland Alexander did it for—you guessed it, the Phils.

But one step at a time, if you please. "I can't say I can shut 30 games out of my mind," Carlton admitted. "But my goal is 25."

Ed Kranepool broke a tie with an eighth-inning sacrifice fly and Tug McGraw came out of the Mets' bullpen to preserve Tom Seaver's 14th victory, shutting off a ninth-inning rally after the Braves had put runners on second and third with one out.

Lee May drove in four runs with a pair of homers and Doug Rader and Cesar Cedeno each added a solo shot to lead the Astros' 20-hit assault against six Montreal pitchers—or, more precisely, five pitchers and a shortstop.

Montreal Manager Gene Mauch wound up using Hector Torres for the final two outs after Joe Gilbert had been manhandled for eight hits and seven runs in 1 1/3 innings.

"I'd used all the pitchers I was going to use and Gilbert couldn't get the outs," Mauch explained—and Astros Manager Harry Walker voiced some understanding. "I would have done the same thing under the same circumstances," he said. "Why bring in a starter who probably needs the rest?"

Jose Cardenal's two-run homer in the third inning carried the Cubs past the Giants, Nate Colbert drove in two runs, one of them with his 34th homer of the year, to lead the Padres past the Cardinals and Wes Parker belted a tie-breaking triple in the sixth inning, then scored on Bobby Valentine's squeeze bunt to send the Dodgers past the Pirates.

Bosox Edge Texas Rangers, 4-3

By KEN RAPPOPORT
Associated Press Sports Writer

Reggie Smith is making noise—with his bat, if nothing else.

The Boston outfielder continued to play the role of the strong, silent hero with a three-run homer Thursday night that helped the Red Sox beat the Texas Rangers 4-3.

"I don't care what he does as long as he keeps hitting," says Boston Manager Eddie Kasko, referring to his uncommunicative star.

Smith wound up a torrid, three-game series in Arlington, Tex., with eight hits in 13 at-bats, including four homers, and 10 RBI. But he refused to talk to reporters, as he has since the Red Sox came into town Tuesday.

While Smith shut communications off between him and the press, the Baltimore Orioles and Chicago White Sox played to the sound of silence Thursday. Only 655 paid customers showed up in Baltimore to watch the White Sox beat the Orioles 6-1 and throw both American League baseball races into a real traffic jam.

The White Sox inched to within a half-game of the idle Oakland A's in the West while the Orioles' lead dropped to the same margin in the East.

Closing ground on the Orioles were the Detroit Tigers, who split a two-night doubleheader with the Minnesota Twins. The Tigers won the opener 12-2 and the Twins the second game, 7-6 in 10 innings.

The third-place New York Yankees, idle Thursday, moved within 1 1/2 games of the top, while Boston lopped off a game to three behind the Orioles. Fifth-place Cleveland, also in contention, remained eight games behind after losing to the California Angels 4-2.

Texas had a 3-1 lead before Smith ripped a three-run homer off Mike Paul in the eighth. Smith's towering shot into the left-center field stands gave starter Marty Pattin his 11th victory in 12 decisions.

Luis Alvarado and Pat Kelly each drove in two runs in the sixth inning to power Chicago past Baltimore, which lost its third straight.

In addition to his two-run single in the sixth, Alvarado doubled to set up a run-scoring single by pitcher Dave Lemonds in the second. Lemonds.

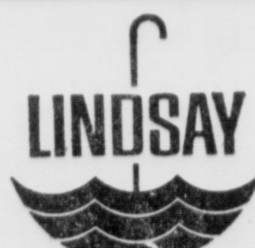

Pickaway DuPont Blanks Clay, 5-0

Pickaway DuPont won over Clay Twp., 5-0, in the Chillicothe Tournament Thursday evening at the Scioto Valley Baseball Park.

Tony Crist hurled all seven innings for the DuPonters, giving up only one hit, walking one, and striking out 18 batters.

Jeff Collins blasted a homerun to pace the DuPont team while Lynn Strehle hit a double and a single, Chuck Cave, Dave Palmer, and Tony Crist all hit doubles and Chris Fouch singled.

Elliott was on the hill for Clay Twp., striking out ten, walking two and giving up seven hits. Pickaway DuPont will play McDermott at Chillicothe 6 p.m. Saturday.

Reaves Faces Acid Test Against Redskins Tonight

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Rookie quarterback John Reaves of the Philadelphia Eagles faces an acid test against the Washington Redskins tonight as another weekend of exhibition pro football get under way.

Reaves impressed in his first start last weekend against the New England Patriots. The Eagle No. 1 draft choice from the University of Florida Reaves led Philadelphia to a 29-20 victory. He completed eight of 11 passes for 89 yards, two of them for touchdowns.

He will be facing a more experienced team in the unbeaten Redskins. Washington routed the Denver Broncos 4-10 last week paced by veteran signal callers Bill Kilmer and Sonny Jurgensen.

In addition to Philadelphia at Washington, Minnesota plays at Buffalo in another NFL exhibition tonight.

Fran Tarkenton, traded during the off-season by the New York Giants, will start at quarterback for the Vikings in his second game for Minnesota. He played his first game for his old team last week and led the Vikings to a 24-14 triumph over San Diego.

Seven more preseason games are scheduled for Saturday. Three more are listed for Sunday and one for Monday night, making it a 13-game weekend program with all 26 NFL clubs in action.

Oakland at Los Angeles in a nationally televised game, (NBC-TV) headlines the Saturday card. In the other six Saturday games, San Francisco is at San Diego, Miami at Cincinnati, Denver at St. Louis, Green Bay at Houston, Pittsburgh at Atlanta and Dallas at New Orleans.

Army Sergeant Wins Rifle Championship

CAMP PERRY, Ohio (AP) — Civilian Ron Troyer has lost his National Rifle Association high-power rifle championship to Army Sgt. 1-C Martin D. Edmondson, 28, of San Saba, Tex.

Edmondson edged the Williamsfield, Ohio native who captured the crown the last two years by one point as the matches wound up Thursday.

On Sunday the New York Giants tangle with the New York Jets at New Haven, Conn., Cleveland battles Detroit at Ann Arbor and the Chicago Bears go against New England at Foxboro, Mass. The Monday night game his Baltimore pitted against unbeaten Kansas City in the Chiefs' new Arrowhead Stadium.

Dallas figured in a deal with the Chicago Bears Thursday. The Super Bowl champions, who suffered the loss of quarterback Roger Staubach due to a shoulder injury against Los Angeles last week, acquired veteran quarterback Jack Conannon.

He was signed as a free agent, having played out his option with the Bears last season. However, the Cowboys sent the Bears tackle Bob Asher, one of their second year men, and Bill Line, a rookie defensive lineman. In addition the Cowboys gave the Bears a second round future draft choice.

In another Thursday development the Patriots asked waivers on Ara Person, a tight end, to make room on their roster for linebacker John Huard.

showed up in Baltimore to watch the White Sox beat the Orioles 6-1 and throw both American League baseball races into a real traffic jam.

The White Sox inched to within a half-game of the idle Oakland A's in the West while the Orioles' lead dropped to the same margin in the East.

Closing ground on the Orioles were the Detroit Tigers, who split a two-night doubleheader with the Minnesota Twins. The Tigers won the opener 12-2 and the Twins the second game, 7-6 in 10 innings.

The third-place New York Yankees, idle Thursday, moved within 1 1/2 games of the top, while Boston lopped off a game to three behind the Orioles. Fifth-place Cleveland, also in contention, remained eight games behind after losing to the California Angels 4-2.

Texas had a 3-1 lead before Smith ripped a three-run homer off Mike Paul in the eighth. Smith's towering shot into the left-center field stands gave starter Marty Pattin his 11th victory in 12 decisions.

Luis Alvarado and Pat Kelly each drove in two runs in the sixth inning to power Chicago past Baltimore, which lost its third straight.

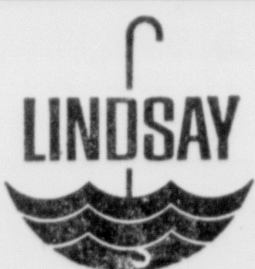

In addition to his two-run single in the sixth, Alvarado doubled to set up a run-scoring single by pitcher Dave Lemonds in the second. Lemonds.

Pickaway DuPont Blanks Clay, 5-0

Pickaway DuPont won over Clay Twp., 5-0, in the Chillicothe Tournament Thursday evening at the Scioto Valley Baseball Park.

Tony Crist hurled all seven innings for the DuPonters, giving up only one hit, walking one, and striking out 18 batters. Jeff Collins blasted a homerun to pace the DuPont team while Lynn Strehle hit a double and a single, Chuck Cave, Dave Palmer, and Tony Crist all hit doubles and Chris Fouch singled.

Elliott was on the hill for Clay Twp., striking out ten, walking two and giving up seven hits. Pickaway DuPont will play McDermott at Chillicothe 6 p.m. Saturday.

Parrish Out To Redeem Self-Respect

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Cincinnati Bengals cornerback Lemar Parrish, still nagged by an ankle injury, will be out to redeem himself Saturday night.

Parrish, who has played on the National Football League All-Star teams in his two first pro seasons, will have to try to make up for a lackluster performance last week by defending such receivers as Paul Warfield when the Bengals meet the Miami Dolphins in an exhibition game.

Wearing a yellow hat and a big grin as he prepared for an exercise drill on a sultry day at training camp, Parrish said, "I have a job I've got to do against Miami."

"They have some great receivers — Warfield, Howard Twilley and now Marlin Briscoe. It will be a great challenge to me."

Parrish, a slim speedster who intercepted seven passes last year, sprained his left ankle shortly after training camp opened, and the first pre-season game he played in was against the Detroit Lions last week. The Bengals won 28-20, but the Lions piled up 334 yards passing, and Coach Paul Brown wasn't very happy.

Bengals Should Better 1971 Mark

By JOHN W. CHACE
CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals, boasting the most depth in their five-year history and a defense upgraded by the draft, should better their 1971 performance.

"We shouldn't have to sneak up on teams to beat them this year," Cincinnati Coach Paul Brown says of his team, which slumped to a 4-10 mark last season. "We think we are going to be very competitive."

The Bengals, who won the American Football Conference Central Division title in 1970, dropped six games last year by four points or less and the defense took much of the blame.

But in the draft, they picked three players who stand a strong chance of starting. They are defensive end Sherman White, safety Tommy Casanova, and linebacker Jim LeClair. Fourth-round draft selection Bernard Jackson, a cornerback, should also see plenty of action.

Regarding over-all depth on both offense and defense, veteran linebacker Al Beauchamp, who is battling to retain his starting spot, said, "We're solid. We can play different people and have the same effort."

The Bengals have back five runners they used pretty much interchangeably last season—Essex Johnson, Fred Willis, Jess Phillips, Paul Robinson and Doug Dressler.

At quarterback, second-year man Ken Anderson of Augustana College in Illinois is giving veteran Virgil Carter a strong challenge for the starting role.

"He is no longer the raw kid you saw last year," Brown said about Anderson, who recently helped lead the Bengals over the powerful Detroit Lions in an exhibition game. "The one who moves us the most effectively is going to carry the brunt of the load."

Anderson took over as a starter last year after Carter was injured. Then Anderson got hurt and the Bengals even used Dave Lewis, the NFL's leading punter the last two years although he played quarterback at Stanford a few years ago.

"We are at the mercy of the quarterback as just about every team is," Brown said. "Whether the quarterbacks stay healthy and whether any other key players are hurt will have a considerable bearing on how we do."

The Bengals' weakness seems to be in the pass receiving department. They had trouble last year with running backs dropping passes, and this year, none of the receivers has seemed to warm up.

"None of our receivers to date has caught the ball like we had hoped," Brown said.

In the offensive line, the Bengals have Pat Matson and Rufus Mayes who both enjoyed good years in 1971. The line complement also includes second-year men Vernon Holland and Steve Lawson.

Brown said he figures that the Pittsburgh Steelers will probably provide the stiffest battle for the division crown.

"I think Pittsburgh is coming in awfully strong," Brown said. "They've had bad years for years, but the drafts are beginning to show up."

Red China Likely To Be Power In World Sports

By WES GALLAGHER
AP General Manager
SIAM, China (AP) — A glimpse of modern China at play indicates this country of 800 million will be a formidable competitor in word and Olympic competition in the future.

The Organization for Sports is probably the most comprehensive in the world today. The most popular sports in order are table tennis, basketball, various forms of shu (a century old sport once combative but now like gymnastics and scored on points), soccer, volleyball and then a number of other sports including track and field.

China and Japan lead the world in table tennis, and China should be among the leaders in volleyball. Western style sports like basketball, track and field suffer from an attack of modern Western techniques.

The Organization of Sports, however, guarantees further and probably rapid progress. It goes like this:

Shensi province is of small to medium size with 21 million people. Siam is the capital. The province has 95 counties and three municipalities. These are under 21 districts.

Each sport is broken down for competitive purposes into juniors and senior. Although the age differs, generally juniors are those below 17 years of age.

Each sport is again broken down between boys and girls.

Therefore each competitive sport will have four champions—boys, juniors and seniors, girls junior and senior.

First there is a competition for the county championship. The winners then go on for the district championship. District champions go on to compete for the province (state) championship.

Once the state championship is decided, the best players on all the teams are selected to represent the state in the national championships.

Taliaferro Is Claimed By Bengals

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Mike Taliaferro, a nine-year veteran quarterback in the National Football League, has been claimed by the Cincinnati Bengals from the New England Patriots.

"He has a good arm and it gives us a chance to look at a third quarterback," said Coach Paul Brown of the former University of Illinois player.

Taliaferro has played with the New York Jets and the Patriots in his career but has never been a starter. He is 6-foot-2 and weighs 205 pounds.

Brown is currently alternating quarterbacks Virgil Carter and Ken Anderson. Dave Lewis, a punter, had been the third quarterback but has been used recently as a running back.

Brown said four rookies will start on defense here Saturday night against the Miami Dolphins in a pre-season contest.

They are Sherman White, defensive end; Jim LeClair, linebacker; Tommy Casanova, safety; and Bernard Jackson, Cornerback.

Court Rules Against Jumping To WHA

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins have won the first round in their legal fight to keep two stars who have signed contracts with the World Hockey Association.

U.S. District Court Judge Levin H. Campbell ruled Thursday that goalie Gerry Cheevers and center Derek Sanderson remain bound to the Bruins at least until Oct. 1 when current National Hockey League contracts expire.

Penn State's Beaver Stadium is being enlarged to bring its capacity to 57,538 for the 1972 season.

Bengals Should Better 1971 Mark

By JOHN W. CHACE
CINCINNATI (AP) — The Cincinnati Bengals, boasting the most depth in their five-year history and a defense upgraded by the draft, should better their 1971 performance.

"We shouldn't have to sneak up on teams to beat them this year," Cincinnati Coach Paul Brown says of his team, which slumped to a 4-10 mark last season. "We think we are going to be very competitive."

The Bengals, who won the American Football Conference Central Division title in 1970, dropped six games last year by four points or less and the defense took much of the blame.

But in the draft, they picked three players who stand a strong chance of starting. They are defensive end Sherman White, safety Tommy Casanova, and linebacker Jim LeClair. Fourth-round draft selection Bernard Jackson, a cornerback, should also see plenty of action.

Regarding over-all depth on both offense and defense, veteran linebacker Al Beauchamp, who is battling to retain his starting spot, said, "We're solid. We can play different people and have the same effort."

The Bengals have back five runners they used pretty much interchangeably last season—Essex Johnson, Fred Willis, Jess Phillips, Paul Robinson and Doug Dressler.

At quarterback, second-year man Ken Anderson of Augustana College in Illinois is giving veteran Virgil Carter a strong challenge for the starting role.

"He is no longer the raw kid you saw last year," Brown said about Anderson, who recently helped lead the Bengals over the powerful Detroit Lions in an exhibition game. "The one who moves us the most effectively is going to carry the brunt of the load."

Anderson took over a starter last year after Carter was injured. Then Anderson got hurt and the Bengals even used Dave Lewis, the NFL's leading punter the last two years although he played quarterback at Stanford a few years ago.

"We are at the mercy of the quarterback as just about every team is," Brown said. "Whether the quarterbacks stay healthy and whether any other key players are hurt will have a considerable bearing on how we do."

The Bengals' weakness seems to be in the pass receiving department. They had trouble last year with running backs dropping passes, and this year, none of the receivers has seemed to warm up.

"None of our receivers to date has caught the ball like we had hoped," Brown said.

In the offensive line, the Bengals have Pat Matson and Rufus Mayes who both enjoyed good years in 1971. The line complement also includes second-year men Vernon Holland and Steve Lawson.

Brown said he figures that the Pittsburgh Steelers will probably provide the stiffest battle for the division crown.

"I think Pittsburgh is coming in awfully strong," Brown said. "They've had bad years for years, but the drafts are beginning to show up."

Red China Likely To Be Power In World Sports

By WES GALLAGHER
AP General Manager
SIAM, China (AP) — A glimpse of modern China at play indicates this country of 800 million will be a formidable competitor in word and Olympic competition in the future.

The Organization for Sports is probably the most comprehensive in the world today. The most popular sports in order are table tennis, basketball, various forms of shu (a century old sport once combative but now like gymnastics and scored on points), soccer, volleyball and then a number of other sports including track and field.

China and Japan lead the world in table tennis, and China should be among the leaders in volleyball. Western style sports like basketball, track and field suffer from an attack of modern Western techniques.

The Organization of Sports, however, guarantees further and probably rapid progress. It goes like this:

Shensi province is of small to medium size with 21 million people. Siam is the capital. The province has 95 counties and three municipalities. These are under 21 districts.

Each sport is broken down for competitive purposes into juniors and senior. Although the age differs, generally juniors are those below 17 years of age.

Each sport is again broken down between boys and girls.

Therefore each competitive sport will have four champions—boys, juniors and seniors, girls junior and senior.

First there is a competition for the county championship. The winners then go on for the district championship. District champions go on to compete for the province (state) championship.

Once the state championship is decided, the best players on all the teams are selected to represent the state in the national championships.

Taliaferro Is Claimed By Bengals

WILMINGTON, Ohio (AP) — Mike Taliaferro, a nine-year veteran quarterback in the National Football League, has been claimed by the Cincinnati Bengals from the New England Patriots.

"He has a good arm and it gives us a chance to look at a third quarterback," said Coach Paul Brown of the former University of Illinois player.

Taliaferro has played with the New York Jets and the Patriots in his career but has never been a starter. He is 6-foot-2 and weighs 205 pounds.

Brown is currently alternating quarterbacks Virgil Carter and Ken Anderson. Dave Lewis, a punter, had been the third quarterback but has been used recently as a running back.

Brown said four rookies will start on defense here Saturday night against the Miami Dolphins in a pre-season contest.

They are Sherman White, defensive end; Jim LeClair, linebacker; Tommy Casanova, safety; and Bernard Jackson, Cornerback.

Court Rules Against Jumping To WHA

BOSTON (AP) — The Boston Bruins have won the first round in their legal fight to keep two stars who have signed contracts with the World Hockey Association.

U.S. District Court Judge Levin H. Campbell ruled Thursday that goalie Gerry Cheevers and center Derek Sanderson remain bound to the Bruins at least until Oct. 1 when current National Hockey League contracts expire.

Penn State's Beaver Stadium is being enlarged to bring its capacity to 57,538 for the 1972 season.

Readers bored with convention watching may wish to dip into John Lange's new book, "Binary." This suspenseful novel tells of the battle of wits waged between a brilliant but mad, right wing millionaire and a tough, resourceful government agent. The stakes are the lives of millions of people living in San Diego at the time of the Republican Convention.

A political background also provides the setting for "Professional" by James Buchanan. An agent for "the Firm" helps a woman escape from Cuba. The price for the help is the return of papers proving who ordered the assassination of President Kennedy.

Two new books by Noel Gerson have widely differing settings. "The Sunday Heroes" follows the fictional career of a manager hired to turn an inferior pro football team into a great one. In "Double Vision" the time-traveling hero is confronted with the dilemma of choosing whether he wishes to remain in the Eighteenth Century or return to the Twentieth. An unexpected discovery on a Connecticut farm has transported the artist hero back to the era of Queen Anne's reign. Here he finds himself involved in a situation similar in many ways to that which confronts him in the Twentieth Century.

"A Wild Justice" by Clifford Francis is a fast reading story of love and death during the Irish rebellion fifty years ago. With the fighting and rebellion in Northern Ireland so much in the news, this novel has a timely and contemporary appeal. Three Irish resistance fighters lose everything but their basic urge to survive in this realistic and dramatic story of life and love.

"Eighth Sea" is a readable autobiography of Frank T. Courtney, fighter pilot in World War I and leader of England's notorious "Suicide Club." This aviation pioneer relates his own experiences in the aviation world from 1913 to 1966.

For mystery buffs, there is "Disappearance of Odile" by Georges Simenon. His is a two part novel following a brother's search for his sister after finding her note which threatens suicide. The second part follows the girl as she tries to disappear and die. For Doris Miles Disney fans, there is a new mystery, "The Day Miss Bessie Lewis Disappeared." When Henry tries blackmail and the landlady is trying to trap him into marriage, the reappearance of his shrewish ex-wife doesn't help matters much. In Robert Block's "Night-World" five escaped patients of a private sanatorium terrorize the San Fernando Valley. The doctor and his staff are murdered. Then three of the five escapees are slain. Karen realizes her husband is either the killer or the next victim. "Aupres de Ma Blonde" by Nicolas Freeling is a suspenseful novel of popular sleuth Van der Valk. One clue — watch his wife closely.

Baptist Assembly Puppet Show Put On By Youngsters

By GEORGE W. CORNELL

AP Religion Writer

NEW YORK (AP) — "Hello, Eve," said the snake. "Hello, Snake," responded blonde Eve, coyly covering her paper-bag body with a large leaf.

The scene, as described by Baptist Press Service, marked the opening of a puppet show at the Ridgecrest Baptist assembly grounds in North Carolina staged by third- and fourth-grade day campers.

The children themselves, in their own version of the Book of Genesis account, had written the script, and provided the performance.

"Wouldn't you like to have an apple?" Snake said enticingly. "What's an apple?" Eve replied innocently.

"It's that fruit over there on that tree," Snake replied.

"Oh, no, no, no!" she said. "God told me not eat anything on that tree."

"God wouldn't care," Snake responded.

"Oh yes he would," Eve countered. "He told me if I ate from that tree something awful would happen to me."

"Well, I ate an apple, and nothing happened to me," the Snake boasted.

"Well, I guess I could eat it then," Eve admitted. She gave a shrill whistle through her teeth and yelled, "Adam: Don't you want to eat an apple?"

Each took a bite of the "apple" that perfectly resembled an acorn. Then they vanished into the garden foliage.

The female-sounding voice of God came from behind the Indian-blanket backdrop. "Why are you hiding?"

"Because we ate the apple," they chorused.

"Then you will have to leave the garden," declared God.

Adam and Eve broke into heavy sobs as the scene closed.

The audience, also grade-schoolers, offered loud applause for the production, aimed at helping youngsters familiarize themselves with the Bible in their own way.

Readers bored with convention watching may wish to dip into John Lange's new book, Binary. This suspenseful novel tells of the battle of wits waged between a brilliant but mad, right wing millionaire and a tough, resourceful government agent. The stakes are the lives of millions of people living in San Diego at the time of the Republican Convention.

A political background also provides the setting for "Professional" by James Buchanan. An agent for "the Firm" helps a woman escape from Cuba. The price for the help is the return of papers proving who ordered the assassination of President Kennedy.

Two new books by Noel Gerson have widely differing settings. "The Sunday Heroes" follows the fictional career of a manager hired to turn an inferior pro football team into a great one. In "Double Vision" the time-traveling hero is confronted with the dilemma of choosing whether he wishes to remain in the Eighteenth Century or return to the Twentieth. An unexpected discovery on a Connecticut farm has transported the artist here back to the era of Queen Anne's reign. Here he finds himself involved in a situation similar in many ways to that which confronts him in the Twentieth Century.

"A Wild Justice" by Clifford Francis is a fast reading story of love and death during the Irish rebellion fifty years ago. With the fighting and rebellion in Northern Ireland so much in the news, this novel has a timely and contemporary appeal. Three Irish resistance fighters lose everything but their basic urge to survive in this realistic and dramatic story of life and love.

"Eighth Sea" is a readable autobiography of Frank T. Courtney, fighter pilot in World War I and leader of England's notorious "Suicide Club." This aviation pioneer relates his own experiences in the aviation world from 1913 to 1966.

For mystery buffs, there is "Disappearance of Odile" by Georges Simenon. His is a two part novel following a brother's search for his sister after finding her note which threatens suicide. The second part follows the girl as she tries to disappear and die. For Doris Miles Disney fans, there is a new mystery, "The Day Miss Bessie Lewis Disappeared." When Henry tries blackmail and the landlady is trying to trap him into marriage, the reappearance of his shrewish ex-wife doesn't help matters much. What's there to strive toward if not the fulfillment of one dream then another? The vision of a two-wheeler yields to the breathless anticipation of four-on-the-floor and bucket seats. Thoughts of a honeymoon cottage soon turn to a three-bedroom ranch. And a two-week vacation, fades into retirement.
